In the world's broad field of battle,
In the conflict of real life,
Advertising is the secret
Of achievement in the strife,
Lives of rich men all remind us,
We can make our own sublime;
And by liberal advertising
To the highest summit climb.

FAYETTEVILLE OBSERVER.

Tell means in mournful numbers,
Advertising does not pay;
For the man's non compus mentis
Who would such absurd things say.
Life is real! Life is earnest!
And the man who hopes to rise
To success in any calling,
Must expect to advertise.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

FAYETTEVILLE would have been well pleased to welcome and entertain the delegates to the nominating convention of this Congressional District, which has been called by the executive committee for July 23rd—but Clinton suits us very well.

THE Raleigh & Gaston Railroad Company has already paid over to the Superior Court Clerk of Wake county the sum of $15,000—the result of the work accomplished by the Legislative Committee. One for the people vs the corporations (Gun!).

THE Emperor of Germany is having built a yacht, which, it is said, will be, when finished, the largest in the world, and the most magnificent, in which he contemplates crossing the ocean for a visit to the United States. If WILLIAM drifts down about Fayetteville we want him to understand that the "latch-string always hangs on the outside." As we have poetically remarked on a previous occasion, "there are no flies" on the people of this town.

THERE has been no such genuine, rollicking humorist in the lower house of Congress for many years as ALLEN, of Mississippi, unless we except the late lamented "Sunset" COX—and his was rather the play of the trenchant, flashing rapier of the scholarly satirist and wit. But ALLEN carries us back to ante bellum days when, a mere lad in Washington, we sat in the gallery of the House of Representatives—perfectly happy, along with hundreds of other auditors, as VANCE, of North Carolina, and big, brawny, genial COCHRAN, of New York, "of infinite jest," gave full play to the exquisite humor that bubbled forth as generously as limpid water from a running spring.

JUDGE HILTON, of New York city, has entered suit against the proprietor or proprietors of the New York World for defamation of his character and that of the late A. T. STEWART, of whom he was the life-long friend and the executor after death. That amounts to nothing. The World has no respect for reputation, fattening on slander as does the ghoul on the revolting spoil snatched from desecrated graves, but it evinces a remarkable aptitude for sneaking out of the consequences of its outrages against decency—as witness its desertion of its reporter, CHOATE, who concealed himself in the jury-room in the Flack ease, and, later, its abandonment of one of its subordinates, who palmed off on the public a mendacious account of an interview with CLEVELAND.

HYMEN probably never performed his holy and mystic rite in this country at an altar so gorgeously bedecked as that which characterized the marriage, in Philadelphia the other day, of COUNT PAPPENHEIM, of a noble and wealthy German family, to Miss LISTER WHEELER, of the creme da la creme of the "Quaker City's" "blue blood." The wedding coach was a marvel of artistic splendor, the horses tossed their proud heads in blue and white rosettes and harness of silver and gold, velvet carpeting lined the pavement for a block to the entrance of St. Mark's Church, through the broad portals of which the wealth and fashion of the city flocked to the strains of Lohengrin—and as for the Count, "Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed" like unto him, his nuptial outfit being described as a bewildering combination of silver lace, silk stocking, blue coat, court sword, etc.

"I UNDERSTAND you all are running 'society' pretty lively. Society! A pair of 75 cent slippers and a dollar and a quarter wasp bonnet lets you into it. Society in Charlotte! Why, if you were to go among the bons tons of Baltimore they wouldn't let you sweep out their kitchens." The foregoing is an extract from the newspaper report of one of SAM JONES'S opening discourses in the city of Charlotte. If Sam Jones were to find himself in decent "society" in Charlotte (which, from the foul, coarse language to which he is addicted, would be for him a piece of amazing good fortune), and were to address a group of ladies assembled in a gentleman's parlor in such terms as the above, he would be promptly shown the door, with cause for hearty congratulation if he were not kicked out of it. Whence has he acquired the right to use the pulpit as a breast-work from which to bombard a community with blackguardism?

THE city of New York annually loses about one of every 6,000 of its valuable citizens by suicide, 77 men and women having voluntarily "shuffled off this mortal coil" for the first quarter of the present year—the largest number ever yet recorded in the city's mortuary statistics. Of this ghastly contribution to the morgue, 21 are Americans and the same number Germans; the French and Spaniards seem to find life a very pleasant sort of thing in the metropolis, for they are credited with not a single felo de se; the women have more fortitude in bearing the "ills they have" than the other sex, as they furnish only about 22 per cent. to the list of suicides. The gun or pistol was the favorite mode of sudden introduction into another world; and, strange to say, that most violent form of death, leaping from a bridge or building—the last, one would suppose, to commend itself to their frail, timid nature—was almost entirely monopolized by women.

The Prince Was Licked.

[Treasure Trove.]

Osborne, Isle of Wight, is Queen Victoria's seaside residence.

Many years ago, when the Prince of Wales was a lad, he was one day playing on the beach, when he spied a basket of fish. Thirsting for fun, he overturned the basket and sent the fish sprawling into the water. The young owner—a boy about the prince's own age—soon returned, and, enraged at the loss of his day's toils, attacked the perpetrator, giving him a vigorous beating; whereupon his royal Highness flew angrily to the castle.

"Know ye, lad, who ye're been laying hands on?" asked a fisherman, approaching; "it's nane other than the heir to the throne."

Consternation filled the mind of the boy and all his family. Ah me! when, in the evening, a summons came from the queen to that youth to present himself at Osborne Castle.

The little fellow started with trembling, thinking over the fireside tales that his child ears had heard of chains and "dungeon keeps," tortures and the ax—cheerful musings to accompany his slow, reluctant steps up the avenue to the castle. His agitated little brain was trying to frame a speech in defense, but when he was ushered into the royal presence every word deserted his lips, and he could not lift his eyes from the floor.

"Are you the boy that dared whip my son," the Prince of Wales?" asked the queen sternly.

"I be, y'r majsty," he replied, trembling in every limb; "and I beg y'r pardon, y'r majsty."

"You don't even try to evade the truth," said the queen. "What provoked you to do it?"

"They—they"—the boy hesitated, still trembling, "they was my father's fish, y'r majsty. Didn't know 'twas his royal Highness."

"Ah, I begin to understand." Then turning to the prince, she asked: "What did you do to his fish?"

"Wanted to see if they'd swim," said the heir apparent, examining the figures on the carpet; "so I tipped the basket a little."

The queen turned to the fisher-boy and said:

"You are a brave lad for defending your father's possessions. Of such mettle may my army be made! Here is a guinea for your fish, and next time the prince, in his eagerness for knowledge, overturns your basket, give him another whipping, and you shall have two guineas from his purse."

A lighter hearted boy never went out of castle gates, and a light hearted father was ever after loyal to England's queen.

Abreviated States.

An ancient Miss. La. very Ill.; "I can no more be Ga.," she cried; "I'll go to Mass., if I get well, and to the Lord my sins confide. * * Go and Col. Pa.," she whispered low to Del., a sister by her bed; "and brother Cal., tell him to come—I'd see them all before I'm dead. For O., I Wis., I'm growing worse, and soon Ore., Jordon's brink I'll glide. The Ind., I know, is near at hand; soon, soon I'll be a heavenly bride." They gathered round the sick maid's bed, and sobbed aloud with heartfelt grief. "Why, why dost cry for Me? You know I soon will find relief. Soon sister Ala. I will see, and brother Kas., who've gone before; and uncle Wash—" Here death stepped in and took the maid to t'other shore. Alas! but death Tex. us all in; we can't escape; his scythe do Mo. the rich, the poor, the lame the halt; e'en kings must be by death laid low.

Railroad to Red Springs.

[Robesonian.]

The proposition to build a railroad from Lumberton to Red Springs which, for some time past, has been quietly though seriously considered by our people, is taking hold of them to such an extent that it is now proposed to hold a mass meeting of all those favoring it, and the time, first Monday of court, is suggested. The feeling is stronger than we had anticipated. Let the meeting be held. With a road from here to Red Springs, and with that road extended to Aberdeen, we would have a line extending through the most thickly-timbered regions of this section. It is but a question of time when this section will be full of railroads, and those who move first will secure the choice of routes and the pick of the pine timber.

A Fiery Serpent in Mid Air.

[Morganton Herald.]

Morganton enjoyed a spectacle recently that very few if any of the towns in North Carolina could command. It was a mountain forest fire stretching for ten miles or more along the face of the Table Rock and Short Off mountains, and appearing in the darkness at the distance of twelve miles like an immense fiery serpent suspended in the air. Hundreds of people gazed on the spectacle, the like of which the oldest inhabitants had never seen. The effect was heightened by the darkness of the night, which rendered the outlines of the mountain invisible, and the illusion was rendered all the more striking from the fact that the band of fire for all its distance was about the same width except on the southern end, where it asumed the shape of a serpent's head.

An Important Case.

In its report of the proceedings of the Supreme Court the Raleigh Evening Visitor of the 25th ult. says:

The case of Brown vs. Brown involves the title to 250,249 acres of land directly, and the title to another tract of 250,000 acres depends upon the decision of this court in this case—altogether over 500,000 acres. It is one of the most important cases that was ever litigated in the courts of this State. It affects the homes of thousands of citizens of Cherokee county.

These lands once belonged to the Cherokee nation of Indians, and was ceded by them to the government who issued grants to various parties. The legality of the grants is now questioned because they were taken out before the Indian title was extinguished.

It is estimated that only about twelve per cent. of the whole population of Russia can read and write. The number of primary schools is only 38,000 in a population very much over 100,000,000.

"Do you like your new mamma, Charlie?' was asked of a precocious youngster of six. "No," he said loftily; "I do not care for ladies' society."

A Paralyzed Comedian.

Gus Williams, the well-known comedian, was tendered a benefit in Boston in 1872, in which city he was a great favorite. The benefit was to take place on Friday evening, and along about Wednesday John Stetson, the word-painter, who was manager of the theatre where Gus was playing, approached the comedian on the quiet, and said:

"Gus, my boy, your friends here are to present to you a watch at your benefit on Friday evening next. I didn't want you to be broken up when they came upon the stage with it, so I thought I would tell you confidentially what is in the wind. Now you can write up a neat little speech for the occasion, and prepare yourself for the ordeal to come."

Gus thanked Stetson heartily for his thoughtfulness. He was pleased with the idea of getting a fine watch. He carried a cheap one, which kept very good time, and this he gave away to the property-man at once, in order that the presentation committee might see that he had no time-piece.

When he went to his room at the hotel that night he wrote out a pretty impromptu speech, in which he said that when he gazed at the face of the beautiful watch he would see the faces of his Boston friends; when he saw the hands he would be reminded of the Boston hand of good fellowship; the spring, when he looked at it, would suggest the well-spring of friendship; the chain would bind him to Boston, etc. It was a neat response, and he studied it carefully. He knew that when he sprang it on the audience they would think him a wonderful extemporaneous speaker, and he shook hands with himself.

Well, the eventful Friday night came at last. The vast house was packed with his enthusiastic friends, and at the proper time the presentation committee filed out upon the stage, and faced him. He braced himself for the ordeal. The chairman stepped forward and presented to him—a cane. He might as well have hit Gus over the head with it, for he could not speak a word.

The Queen of Spain.

[Pall Mall Gazette.]

A prominent Spanish statesman was asked the other day to what he attributed the strange fact that a woman, and a foreigner, held the reins of government successfully in her hands in a country so undermined as Spain by political intrigue. "The marvel, if marvel there be," was the reply, "can be explained in the simplest manner. The Queen maintains her position because she is the exact opposite of an intriguing and conspiring woman. She tells no falsehoods, has nothing of the hypocrite about her, is as simple and modest as she is honest, and there is nobody in Spain who is not convinced that she tries to do her best for the country. The Queen's popularity—especially with the women of Spain—is a real power which gives her much of the hold which she has over her subjects. Natural tact, intelligence and kindness are also among the weapons by which Queen Christina maintains her position."

Like our own Queen, the Queen Regent of Spain has worn mourning ever since the death of her consort, and only quite lately she has begun to wear jewelry on state occasions. In public the Queen, who is thirty-one years old, appears only with her son, the little King, with whom she takes drives in the neighborhood of Madrid. The Queen's two daughters, aged nine and seven respectively, talk Spanish, French, German and English fluently, and are both very strong and healthy-looking children. Since it has become known that the Queen calls Alphonso XIII. "Bubi," in memory of her Austrian home, Spanish ladies have begun to call their children by the name, which—ignorant of its real derivation from bube, boy—they trace back to the English term, baby, or, more ingeniously, from "puppy."

The Struggle for Wealth Makes Poverty.

[Forum.]

The struggle for wealth is turning out barbarians by the million, on as large a scale, in fact, as any other products of our expensive machinery. Competition governed by no higher principle than the "higgling of the market" creates poverty, drunkenness, vice, physical degradation and bestial indifference to every human good. The abundance which ought to feed civilization is choking it. The "labor market" has taken the place of the slave market, and men, women and children are sold in it every day. But the wage-earner comes cheaper than the slave. He belongs to nobody. His fee simple in our magnificent social progress is but a "contingent remainder" in the workhouse, where no useful work is ever done, lest it should increase the competition outside, and so multiply paupers.

A Beautiful Legend.

After Stonewall Jackson's death, at Chancellorsville, a story became current in the Confederate army which the soldiers loved to repeat over their bivouac fires—that, on account of his extreme piety, when their famous chieftain fell a detachment of angels left the heavenly gates to visit the battle field and escort the hero's soul into Paradise. The celestial squadron searched the close strewn plain, but without effect. He whom they sought could not be found, and they returned mournfully to heaven to report their want of success. But lo, on arriving they found the spirit of the immortal warrior there already. Stonewall Jackson had made a flank march and got to heaven before them.

Intended to Find Out.

Reporter (to Indiana woman who has married her ninth husband)—Would you have any objection, madam, to telling me whether or not you consider marriage a failure?

Indiana woman (severely)—I don't know whether it is or not, young man, but I'm going to find out if it takes every man this side of Terry Hut.

Then He Didn't.

A young man was calling on a Congressman's daughter the other evening, when the father appeared at the parlor door.

"May I come in?" he asked hesitatingly.

"Oh, yes," she answered, "you may, but we have a quorum without you."

Wife (after a lively "spat")—The fools ain't all dead yet.

Husband—They ain't, eh?

Wife—No, or I would have the amount of your insurance policy before this.

NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS.

The reason RADAM'S MICROBE KILLER is the most wonderful medicine is because it has never failed in any instance, no matter what the disease, from LEPROSY to the simplest disease known to the human system.

DEATH OF SENATOR BECK.

Almost on the spot where, about nine years before, the pistol of Guiteau enacted a tragedy which vacated the chair of the Presidency of the United States, Senator Beck, of Kentucky, on Friday last sank under the crushing force of an attack of disease of the heart, and expired almost before loving arms could lift the stricken form. He had just returned from a consultation with a distinguished specialist in New York regarding his physical condition, and was leaving the Pennsylvania R. R. depot at the moment of his seizure.

Senator Beck's distinguished public service had been of more than twenty years' duration at the time of his death, without that probationary period through which the average American politician must work his toilsome and devious way to distinction —Mr. Beck's first honor at the hands of his fellow-citizens being a seat in the House of Representatives, whence, after four terms marked by conspicuous ability, he crossed the threshold of that more august body, the United States Senate, in which he wielded commanding influence up to the hour of his death.

Senator Beck stood, if not quite abreast, very nearly in rank with Ben Hill, of Georgia, Lamar, of Mississippi, Eustis, of Louisiana, Morgan, of Alabama, Garland, of Arkansas, and Vance, of North Carolina—among the biggest brained men that have helped to shape the destinies of the South for the past fifty years—and, like the great North Carolinian, the predominant traits of the illustrious Kentuckian's character, the heritage of his Scotch blood, were absolute fearlessness when following the line of duty and unswerving devotion to principle. If these two, par nobile fratrum, belonged not to the stiff-necked generation, they were certainly of the stiff-kneed, for they found in those sturdy supporters no "pregnant hinge to crook, that thrift might follow fawning."

THREE CHEERS FOR CUMBERLAND!

Herald the glad tidings to the four corners of the civilized world! Proclaim it from the house-tops! that at a meeting of the Board of Education of Cumberland county, in this city Monday, the following resolution was unanimously passed:

"Ordered that the Superintendent of "Public Instruction be instructed to for-"bid the use of Mrs. C. P. Spencer's 'First "Steps in North Carolina History,' and "Goodrich's 'Histories of the United "States.'"

Such books as mentioned above have done no little to poison the minds of the present generation, and prejudice them against men and measures of the past, men of whom this generation should delight to honor, and whose memory they should fittingly perpetuate, and whose career is a rich legacy to us all. Cumberland county has therefore planted itself in advance of the other counties throughout the State, and it becomes them to "follow suit" by emulating the most worthy example she has thus set. To use a common expression, the resolution is a "clincher," and puts an end, for all time to come, to the ill-fated and partizanly written "First Steps in North Carolina History," and another trashy publication of about equal merit. Such publications should be as speedily expunged from our public schools as possible, and our children taught to scorn them and their authors with contempt. For the suppression of such, the OBSERVER has the proud satisfaction of knowing that it contributed its proportionate share, and truly hopes that every county, from Cherokee to Currituck, will adopt the above resolution on the first Monday in June.

NORTH CAROLINA FOR NORTH CAROLINIANS.

The board of trustees of the Agricultural and Mechanical College spent yesterday afternoon here. They elected a man named Emry, of New York, assistant agriculturist, and they confirmed all the work done by the executive committee in the matter of the new mechanical building.—Raleigh Correspondence Wilmington Messenger.

We "rise to a point of order," and simply ask, in behalf of the people of North Carolina—and without disparagement to those who enter within our gates from distant States—is there not brains enough in the old North State to run one Agricultural College, an institution conceived and brought forth by North Carolina brains for the advancement of agriculture of North Carolinians? In other words, would not a man, "native and to the manor born," who is acclimated to our climate, soil, &c., be better qualified to give better satisfaction than one from the Northern States, to whom our habits, customs and modus operandi of tilling the soil is foreign?

For one, gentlemen, the OBSERVER is for North Carolina against the world, and that is the flag under which we will fight henceforth.

Capt. W. E. Kyle, Gen'l Freight and Passenger Agent of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway, returned last week from a trip to Atlanta, Ga. The manufacturing and railroad activity of the South, he says, is wonderful, and the Piedmont region, especially, is in the flush of extraordinary progress. "(Southward) the star of empire takes its way."

Elections in North Carolina.

SOUTHPORT, N. C., May 5.—At the municipal election held here to-day Dr. D. I. Watson was chosen mayor and a full board of Democratic aldermen were elected. The contest was close. This is the first time that Southport has gone Democratic in many years.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—At an election held here to-day upon the proposition to issue bonds of the town not exceeding $10,000, to be devoted to the purchase of rights of way and terminal property for a branch of the Wilmington & Weldon Railway here, it was carried by a large majority, the result being as follows: For proposition 476; against proposition 12.

TARBORO, May 5.—The city elections held here to-day passed off quietly, resulting in the election of the following aldermen: Donnell Gilliam, (Dem.) first ward; Benj. F. Spraggins, (Dem.) second ward, and J. W. Gant, (Rep.) in third ward. The Democrats hold over. The election in the third ward was very close, Gant being elected by only one vote—a Democratic gain of thirty votes.

GOLDSBORO, May 5.—The election passed off in good order. Only in the fifth ward was there any excitement, and J. R. Griffin was elected. The new Board is an excellent one, consisting of Messrs. Nathan O'Berry, James M. Hollowell, M. T. Lee, Henry Lee, Thos. Emundson, Dr. M. E. Robinson, J. R. Griffin and Isaac Hodges, col. Indications are that Mayor Peterson will be reelected, which would be a well-merited compliment.

Laurinburg held a wet and dry election yesterday and the "drys" carried the town by four majority. M. J. Edwards was re-elected mayor.

Maxton goes wet by twenty-eight majority.

Rockingham voted for high license yesterday by twenty-eight majority. The license is increased from $150 to $300 per year.

THE DEAD SENATOR.

Arrangements for Mr. Beck's Funeral Services.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The remains of Senator Beck have been placed in a casket and lie in the parlor of the House of Representative W. C. P. Breckenridge, on Capitol Hill. A large number of persons, including the most of his Senatorial colleagues, called during the day to view the body and tender condolences to Mrs Goodloe, daughter of the late Senator. A large number of telegrams of condolence were also received.

The funeral arrangements have not been finally and definitely determined upon as yet. The Kentucky Congressional delegation secured charge of the remains, and will, to-morrow morning, finally arrange all of the details, respect of course being to the wishes of Mrs. Goodloe. The delegation met in the Democratic caucus room of the Senate at 11 o'clock this morning, Senator Blackburn presiding. Most of the time was occupied in recalling recollections of the dead man. It was agreed that Senator Blackburn should formulate resolutions to be offered in the Senate, and that the Senate should be asked to adjourn over until Wednesday, the funeral to take place on Tuesday. Representative Breckinridge was requested to confer with the Speaker, and if possible secure an adjournment of the House from about 2 o'clock Monday until Wednesday.

The delegation favored the remains lying in state in the Senate Chamber from to-morrow afternoon until the time of the funeral service, but Mrs. Goodloe prefers that this part of the programme be omitted, and in deference to her wishes they will remain at Mr. Breckinridge's until just before the funeral services.

It is expected that Senator Blackburn will deliver an oration during the services in the Senate. The body will then be taken to Lexington, Ky. They will be turned over to the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad. At Lexington they will be turned over to Gov. Buckner and the State officials. Dr. W. A. Bartlett, of the Presbyterian Church, Lexington, will conduct the services at the grave. They will be very brief, and will take place not later than Thursday.

Senator Beck's son, who is somewhere in Wyoming, has not been heard from. He is probably some distance from a telegraph office, and therefore will not be able to communicate with his sister until he and the courier sent to find him reach a railroad station.

The honorary pall-bearers are ex-Attorney General A. H. Garland; Judge L. S. Trimble, formerly Representative in Congress from the Paducah, Kentucky, district; O. O. Staley, correspondent Louisville Courier-Journal; Col. L. O. Washington; ex-Congressman Phillip B. Thompson, Jr.; W. R. Smith, Superintendent of the Botanical Garden, and a long time tried friend of the Senator; Col. J. Fletcher Johnson, of Kentucky, and Blair Lee, of this city. The actual bearers will be the Capitol policemen.

LOUISVILLE, May 4.—The news of Senator Beck's death was received with universal regret.

The Courier-Journal says Mr. Beck was a man of wonderful physical powers, and his capacity for hard, exacting labor seemed unlimited. He had a sturdy mental force, which we look for in a body such as his. For years all of his powers were given with a noble generosity to an oppressed and unrepresented people. During all of the years of darkness and of gloom which followed the war Mr. Beck had eleven Southern States for his constituents. Combative by nature, drawing in with every breath his Scotch love of freedom, a man of marvellous resources, of fine courage, sound in debate and of unbounded value in committee, Mr. Beck's public services have rarely been equalled in the House or Senate. His mind was stored with information which was at all times at his command. Every incident in the political history of his times was familiar to him, and he saw at once the tendency and results of legislative experiments. He was not a man of much imaginative power, and his addresses were singularly free from rhetorical figures, yet he spoke with such earnestness, he had so plainly the powers of the full man, that he was even in popular assemblages listened to with profound attention. The State loses in the death of Senator Beck an adopted son, more loyal to her traditions, more faithful to her destinies, than many to the manner born. Kentucky has always delighted to honor this man, and to-day she mourns him as a most faithful servant and a most cherished leader. His career is known to all men, his long public service, unstained even by a breath of reproach, and rich in all that dignifies political life, is a legacy dearer than gold, and his example is full of inspiration and encouragement. Mr. Beck had outlived all of the rancor of partisan contests, and died possessed of the esteem alike of friends and enemies.

The World's Cotton Supply.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The total visible supply of cotton for the world is 2,345,800 bales, of which 1,617,300 are American, against 2,196,913 and 1,550,913, respectively, last year. Receipts at all interior towns, 9,924; receipts, plantations, 5,371; crop in sight, 1,037,594.

Mrs. Gov. Graham Dead.

RALEIGH, N. C., May 5.—Mrs. Susan Graham, widow of the late Gov. Graham, of this State, died Saturday night at midnight, at the residence of her son-in-law, Judge Walter Clark, of Raleigh. Mrs. Graham was born on the 27th of February, 1816, in New Berne, and lived there until her marriage to Gov. Graham in 1836, after which she lived alternately in Hillsboro, Raleigh and Washington City.

Mrs. Graham's maiden name was Miss Susan Washington. She was a descendant of Lawrence Washington, a half-brother to George Washington.

Kemmler's Case Before the United States Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Roger M. Sherman to-day made application in the United States Supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus for Kemmler, under sentence of death in New York by electricity, pursuant to the order of Judge Wallace, of New York, directing that he should make application immediately. The court denied the application for the writ of habeas corpus, but informed Sherman that on May 19 the court would hear a motion for a writ in the case, notice to be given the attorney general of the State. This will permit the whole record to be brought here and the case argued. The court follows the precedent established in the Spies anarchist case. As the court adjourns for the term May 19, the decision denying or granting a writ of error will be announced almost immediately after argument.

A Southwestern Cyclone.

JACKSON, Miss., May 6.—A violent storm visited this city yesterday morning. The tin roofing on the hall of the House of Representatives in the State house was blown off, leaving the hall and auditor's office unprotected. At Natchez the storm was also very violent, blowing down trees and doing other damage. The roof of the Democrat building, a three-story structure, was carried away and the office wrecked. In Vidalia the Methodist church building was demolished.

A special to the New Orleans Picayune from Granbury to-day says: A destructive cyclone visited Scott's creek, in the eastern portion of Cook county, after 5 o'clock Sunday morning. The beginning of serious trouble was at the residence of Mr. Lee Rhodes, twelve miles east of that place. There were about twenty persons in the house when the cyclone struck it. Miss D. Carmichael, aged seventeen years, was instantly killed, also Mary Carmichael, aged one year, and a little baby of Mrs. Gibbs. Mrs. Gibbs Rhodes and her twelve year-old daughter, Norah, were seriously hurt and may die. Mrs. Gibbs and her ten-year-old daughter, Sallie, were also seriously injured, and other children in the house were bruised. At Fall Creek, a little further south, several houses were wrecked and many people seriously injured.

The damage to outhouses, fences, crops and timber is very great. At the little town of Action four persons were killed and a number seriously injured. Many houses were demolished in that vicinity. At Robinseik in Hood county eight persons were killed, five of whom belonged to the family of Geo. Griffin. Heavy hail stones fell throughout the section, doing immense damage to the crops. The news from Graham, in Young county, says that the heavy hailstones which fell there Sunday has completely ruined the crops, vegetables, wheat, corn and oats being ruined.

Insane Asylum Burned.

MONTREAL, May 6.—The insane asylum at Longue Pointe, nine miles from here, caught fire at 11 o'clock this morning, and at 2 o'clock was in flames with no hope of saving the building from destruction. As near as can be calculated, from 100 to 150 insane inmates were caught in the building with no chance of their escape. The fire apparatus at the asylum was utterly inadequate to control the flames, and several steamers were forwarded from here on a special train. The sights in the grounds surrounding the institution are horrible beyond description. Hundreds of lunatics, male and female, are grouped together, jabbering and in a frenzied condition. The nuns are making every effort to control them and allay their fears, and as rapidly as possible the poor creatures are being removed to places of shelter in the neighborhood. At a few minutes past 2 o'clock a detachment of the Montreal fire brigade arrived on the scene. The excitement among the lunatics in the grounds finally became so great that a detachment of the Montreal police force was hurried out to assist the guards. There were 1,300 persons in the asylum when the fire broke out.

The asylum was destroyed, and nothing remains standing but the blackened walls and chimneys. It contained thirteen hundred patients or rather prisoners, and eleven hundred are accounted for. Of the remainder a considerable number escaped to the woods and bushes, and are scattered through the country. What the number of the dead is is purely a matter of conjecture, and can never be ascertained, since no other record is kept than that in the asylum book, and it is also destroyed. Taking into consideration the whole of the evidence from the firemen, the half-sane inmates, Sisters in charge, bystanders and personal observation, it is a conservative estimate to say that one hundred victims met their death, though some assert that the number is double that stated, and others place it below this figure. However, the fact remains that no such calamity has fallen upon the Province of Quebec since the earliest times.

Foot Prints of Labor Day.

BARCELONA, May 3.—Riotous strikers had complete possession of this city yesterday for a time. They stopped the cars, and threw one from the track and smashed it to places. Bodies of strikers proceeded to the various printing offices throughout the city, and by threats compelled the compositors to leave their work. In consequence, no newspapers were published yesterday. Placards were scattered broadcast, urging the strikers to pillage the city.

THE POLICE REPULSED.

The police charged the rioters, but the latter resisted, and attacked the police, finally compelling them to retire. In the evening three regiments arrived in the city, and the government issued a proclamation threatening death to any of the strikers who interfered with the liberty of the men who were willing to work

The mob became cowed at the firm attitude of the authorities and the presence of military, and slowly dispersed.

QUIET AT LAST.

At midnight quietness prevailed, and the streets were comparatively deserted, but it is feared that further rioting will occur. Anarchists are actively engaged in attempting to foment the public, and meetings are to be held in various parts of the city Sunday. They declare that the time has arrived for the beginning of a social revolution.

LATER.—At last accounts all was quiet.

DIED.

TILLINGHAST—Of inflammation of the stomach, in Raleigh, on the 15th ult., in the 9th year of his age, THOMAS HOOPER, only son of Thomas H. Tillinghast, formerly of Fayetteville. This manly and lovable little boy had endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact, and, when the announcement of his sudden death was made, a wave of sadness passed over many hearts. But "it is well with the child," for he is safe in the arms of Jesus, the gentle Shepherd, who gathers the lambs into His fold, in His own good time.

GAINEY—On Monday morning at 3 o'clock, May 5th, 1890, WINN CAINEY, the eight-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. A. Gainey, which sad event occurred at their residence about 8 miles from town. Mr. and Mrs. Gainey have a host of friends in this city, where they once resided, who deeply sympathize with them in the hour of their sore affliction.

IN MEMORIAM.

CANDACE BROWN was born in what is now Harnett County, then Cumberland, December 31, 1800. When 14 years of age she made a public profession of her hope and faith in Christ, uniting with the Baptist Church at Piney Grove, Harnett county. In her 16th year she became the wife of Burwell Jones, with whom she lived in contented happiness until his death about 1845. Unto them were born three sons and eight daughters, of whom two sons and four daughters are yet living and well-known as worthy citizens of our community. Sometime about 1850 Mrs. Jones with her husband moved to Fayetteville, where she resided until her death April 26, 1890. Soon after moving here, she connected herself with the First Baptist Church, of which she was a consistent and valued member to her death. Mrs. Jones was for the last twenty-five years of her life a severe sufferer, and was confined to her home, rarely getting beyond the portal of her house hence to the younger generations she was comparatively unknown. But to those who saw her during these days of affliction was given a lesson in patience, christian fortitude and assurance concerning God's promises that may not easily be forgotten. In her the community loses another of th links binding us to the misty, mighty past—her circle a true friend and beloved mother, and her church a member of good record and helpful influence. She died having her mind set upon things above, and for her we may believe it was a gain indeed. 89 years, 3 months and 26 days of earth is much more than the allotted time—much for suffering—much for joy—an eternity of heaven is well worth the exchange.

LEVROI.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

At a meeting of Esther Lodge, No. 7, Daughters of Rebekah, held April 15th, 1890, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, Our Heavenly Father, in His allwise providence has seen fit to remove from our midst our beloved brother JAMES VANN;

Resolved, That in the death of Bro. Vann this Lodge has lost one of its most valued members, who was ever ready by his wise counsel and aid to advance the interest of this Lodge; faithful in the discharge of every duty, and devoted to every interest looking to the advancement of our noble order.

Resolved, That while we mourn the loss of our Brother, we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well, and that we tender the family of our deceased brother our sincere and heartfelt condolence in this their sore bereavement.

Resolved, That this Lodge wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days as a token of our esteem for him.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, and a copy of the same be transmitted to the family of the deceased, and also a copy to the Fayetteville OBSERVER for publication.

WHAT THEY SAY ABOUT
ROYAL GERMETUER

The following is an extract from a letter written by the World Renowned Evangelist:

"I returned from Tyler, TEXAS, on the 12th inst. I find my wife has been taking Royal Germetuer to the GREAT UPBUILDING of her physical system. She is now almost free from the distressing headaches with which she has been a MARTYR for twenty years. Surely it has done wonders for her! I WISH EVERY POOR SUFFERING WIFE HAD ACCESS TO THAT MEDICINE."

Rev. J. B. Hawthorne, Pastor First Baptist church, Atlanta, Ga., was cured of a long standing case of Catarrh. His wife had been an invalid from nervous headache, neuralgia, and rheumatism FOR THIRTY YEARS, scarcely having a day's exemption from pain. After taking Royal Germetuer two months, he writes: "A more complete transformation I have never witnessed. EVERY SYMPTOM OF DISEASE HAS DISAPPEARED. She appears to be twenty years younger, and is as happy and playful as a healthy child. We have persuaded many of our friends to take the medicine, and the testimony of all of them is that it is a great remedy."

Dr. King's Royal Germetuer is a boon to women. It builds up the strength, increases the appetite, aids digestion, relieves them of the cause of disease, and insures health.

It is an infallible cure for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Paralysis, Insomnia, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Palpitation, Liver, Bladder and Kidney Diseases, Chills and Fevers, Catarrh, all Blood and Skin Diseases, Female Troubles, etc.

Prompted by a desire to reach more suffering people, the price has been reduced from $2.50 to $1.00 per concentrated bottle, which makes one gallon of medicine as per directions accompanying each bottle. For sale by the

SORE LEG CURED.

BLACK CREEK, N. C.

MRS. JOE PERSON—Dear Madam:—Yours of the 17th received, and very willingly I will reply. When I first commenced the use of your valuable medicine I could not walk one step, on account of a very bad sore on my leg. I bought three bottles of your Remedy and four packages of the Wash, and commenced to use it. I could see the improvement in a few days, and to-day I can happily say I am well, and can, with much pleasure, recommend it to any person as the best medicine I ever used. Yours truly, C. PITTMAN.

The above sore was caused by a wound received during the war, and has been sore ever since, so Mr. Pittman told me.

MRS. JOE PERSON.

Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy will Cure Blood Impurity.

ROCKY MOUNT, N. C.

A few months ago my daughter had been suffering with some blood impurity which resulted in boils and risings on her body; they occasioned such debility and general bad health that I had to stop her from school in consequence. She was reduced in flesh, and her general health was giving way. After trying various treatments without effect, I concluded to use Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. It acted like a charm: her general health is excellent, she is cured of the risings, has resumed her studies, and in every way is in better health than she ever was in her life. As a tonic for general debility it has no equal.

I am very truly, B. R. ARRINGTON.

My Remedy is now put in plain, round, pint packing bottles, no name blown. The carton holding bottle is now printed altogether in black ink instead of black and red as heretofore; my signature on each label is now written with pen and ink, instead of lithographed as formerly. Every label and carton numbered, as in physicians' prescriptions. The Wash packages are printed altogether in black ink and numbered. Persons buying the Remedy should see that the new style is furnished them, as I cannot guarantee any other to be genuine. MRS. JOE PERSON,
Kittrell, N. C.

MANY THANKS, GENTLEMEN!

MESSRS. EDITORS:—During the past year I have been fairly competing with representatives of other good Insurance Companies for the Life business of this town, and while a goodly number of our citizens have selected Companies represented by persons from abroad, the large majority have seen fit to place their insurance with resident agents, knowing that the best companies in existence are represented by them; and to those who have so kindly thus favored me, I desire to tender my grateful thanks, and to assure them that I will take care of their interests, and that the NEW YORK LIFE will give them as large returns for their investment as any company could.

Thanking you, gentlemen, for your patronage, I am

Your obedient servant,

A Northerner's View of the South.

Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, of New York, has recently been making a journey through the South, and the following is a partial expression of his views of this section:

"Two things are making the Southern people Yankees," continued Mr. Depew—"contact with Northern travelers and their tremendous industrial development of the past twenty years. The substantial growth in accumulated wealth, the opening of coal and iron mines, the starting of blast furnaces, the building of railroads and the rapid transformation of villages to cities in the South has seldom been paralleled even in the United States at large. If the ore compares favorably with that of other parts of the country, northern Alabama and eastern Tennessee will inevitably control our iron market in the future. Then those who have heretofore sought cheap unoccupied land in the West find it growing scarcer and scarcer, while it is abundant in the South, where the climate and general conditions are favorable for successful agriculture at much less expense and larger returns than are now possible in any other part of the country. It is not too much to say that the South is to be the opportunity of the future for the energies and happiness of our people."

Mr. Depew does us honor overmuch. It is true that, during the past twenty-five years, the South has largely lost its distinctive characteristic of homogeneity; but we are not prepared to believe that the tide of immigration, the influx of capital, the impetus of material progress or intercommunication with other portions of the country will avail to make Yankees of the Southerners—and we make this vigorous disclaimer without churlishness or intention of offense. Our Northern neighbor is an admirable character, bristling all over with good points, but we do not think that the amalgam would improve either stock; and, as matter of fact, we venture to say that the experience of a quarter of a century proves that the new elements of population take color from their surroundings, and adopt Southern traits and peculiarities with their citizenship. So far, the old South has proven too strong for iconoclasm; it "proves all things, and holds fast that which is good."

Heroic Preventive for Suicide.

Central Express.]

On last Saturday Mrs. Hurley, an infirm old lady of Jonesboro, attempted to commit suicide by hanging herself to the door of her room. A small grandchild found her thus, and ran for help. When the child returned with some neighbors Mrs. Hurley had almost succeeded in untying the rope from her neck, but was in an extremely critical situation, and but for the help would perhaps have died. Since then an old citizen of the place took upon himself to affect a heroic cure. He procured a rope and presented himself at the house of Mrs. Hurley. He inquired why she attempted to kill herself, and received the reply that she was tired of living. He then told her he had come to help her finish the job, and, asking a little boy where she had tried to hang herself, produced his rope, tied it to the door, and, making a noose, commanded her to come forward; but she vigorously declined. He then offered her a bottle of whiskey, telling her it was laudanum (which she had previously demanded), and told her to drink it; it would kill her. She refused to do so, and tried to send the child off for help to stop the proceeding. The old man then left in apparent disgust, declaring that she was not yet ready to die. The family of the old lady are naturally indignant, and have threatened a prosecution.

This was "heroic treatment," it is true, with something of officiousness thrown in; but, afterall, is it not likely to prove a wholesome lesson—inclining the old lady rather to "bear the ills she has than fly to others that she knows not of?" Probably her old neighbor's rather rude method of "taking the bull by the horns" was dictated by really friendly and affectionate feelings in behalf of one whom he had known through a long life, and into whose deplorably morbid state of mind he wished to inject a salutary spirit of resignation.—EDS. OBS.]

Carolina Pencil Works.

Clinton Caucasian.]

The large double-story addition to this new large Southern enterprise, located at Clinton, is completed. In the front of this addition are the offices of Mr. A. F. Johnson, the proprietor, and H. B. Chesnutt, the superintendent. The inside finishing of the offices of the former, done with oiled sweet-gum and cypress, is a model of elegant neatness. The front yard is to be turfed, and adorned with flowers and a fountain. This addition doubles the rack-room and the drying-room capacity, and, therefore, virtually the capacity of the butter-dish department, for the great trouble heretofore has been to dry the forms fast enough for the stamping machines. The capacity now is a quarter of a million, with a half a million forms ahead of the machines. The factory is running at its full and increased capacity, and is still unable to fill orders as fast as received. Two car-loads of dishes and one car-load of berry baskets were shipped yesterday. And on account of the superior quality of these goods, they are not only in great demand but are selling at 5 per cent. more than the same kind of goods made by any other factory in the world. An addition is being added to the planing department to make room for another planing machine. On account of the excessive dry weather the supply of water from the springs becoming short, a hydraulic pump, that is a marvel of simple ingenuity, was placed in Dollar's branch yesterday to increase the supply. The factory has a great advantage in a fine supply of suitable wood; while in the veneer department we saw a tremendous block of gum hoisted into one of the veneer machines, and were told that it weighed 2,500 pounds; just think of it, the weight of five large bales of cotton. On every side there is push and hurry. Yet each employe moves with the precision and regularity of the machines themselves. While in this mammoth hive of busy industry it is difficult for one to realize that he is still in the staid old rural district of Sampson, but rather feels as if he were translated to the manufacturing quarters of some great busy metropolis.

Washed Back from Mid-Ocean.

Wilmington Messenger.]

Last summer, when the North Carolina teachers were on their excursion to Europe, some of the party wrote the following note, corked it in a bottle and threw it overboard in mid-ocean:

"MID-OCEAN, Aug. 16th, '89.
STEAMER STATE OF INDIANA,
FROM NEW YORK TO LIVERPOOL.

"We are a jolly set of North Carolina girls, off on a summer trip. A happier set than is on this boat has never been found. We have had a gay time so far, and expect to keep it up. We are in the 'Angel's Retreat.' We have a chain gang in connection with our retreat.

"The finder of this will please communicate with Miss Jennie Allen, 406 South Third street, or Miss Helen Fowle, of Raleigh.

"Miss Jennie Allen, Miss Helen Fowle, Miss Sue Cumming, Miss Anna Mebane, Miss Mary Grimes, Miss Emma Chadbourn, Miss Jessie Kenan, Miss Bella Skinner."

The "jolly set" barely hoped even to hear of this missive, which they threw into the ocean on the night of the 16th of August last year; but, oddly enough, Miss Allen, of this city, received a letter yesterday from a gentleman informing her that while walking on Virginia Beach, near Norfolk, Va., on Wednesday evening last he picked up the bottle on the beach. He was about to toss it into the surf, but a young lady with whom he was walking called his attention to the note inside.

The finding of the note is a pleasant reminder of that jolly trip over the sea, and the young ladies will all be delighted upon learning the circumstance.

The Marriage of Mr. McIver and Miss Jones.

Central Express.]

On the afternoon of Wednesday at 4:30 o'clock, at the residence of the bride's mother, Mr. John Alton McIver and Miss Mary Eppes Jones, of Jonesboro, were united in marriage, Rev. N. McKay, D. D., officiating. In the illumined parlor were gathered about fifty guests, nearly all, excepting a few friends, the kindred of the parties contracting. Misses Belle McIver and Mamie Bingham stood at the altar with the candidates. The ceremony was short and impressive, and was followed by Dr. McKay's tender and touching words of congratulation to the young couple, and the congratulation of relatives and friends. Among the friends and relatives present from a distance were Miss Mamie Bingham, of Mebaneville; Mr. and Mrs. Calvin McKinnon, of Laurinburg; Miss Ellen Jones, of Richmond, Va., and Mr. Seldon Jones, of Washington and Lee University. The two last named are the aunt and brother of the bride.

The infair was held at Dr. John McIver's on Thursday.

The high popularity and extensive family connection of the contracting parties rendered it an event of great social prominence. The young people will occupy their residence on Main street at once.

[The bride is the daughter of the late Col. L. C. Jones, and Fayetteville people wish her all happiness from the love which they bore for her lamented father.—EDS. OBSERVER.]

Senator Beck Drops Dead.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Senator Beck, of Kentucky, dropped dead at the Baltimore & Potomac Railroad station, in this city, a few moments after 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Senator Beck was born in Scotland Feb. 13, 1822. He received an academic education in his native land, and, coming to this country as a youth, graduated in law at Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky., in 1846. He practiced law in Kentucky for many years, and held no office (although he took an active interest in politics) until he was elected to Congress in 1869. He remained a member of the House of Representatives for 8 years, when he was elected to the Senate. He took his seat in the Senate March 5, 1877, and he was twice reelected.

Crop Returns for April.

Returns of crops for April, as made by one thousand correspondents, and as summarized by the Department of Agriculture this afternoon, show the following percentages of condition: Wheat 84½; oats 81½; rye 86½; corn 96; cotton 92; sorghum 92; clover 95; meadows 93½; orchards 64. The latter statement shows the work of the frosts in March and April. The following stock percentages are also shown: Horses 95; cattle 95; sheep 91, and hogs 92.

Trial for Life.

Clinton Caucasian.]

On Tuesday evening a venire of 100 men outside of the town of Clinton was summoned to appear before the court on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. On Wednesday, out of this number, ten men only were selected to sit on the jury. A special venire of 20 men more was summoned, from which to select the remaining two jurymen. At 4 P. M. the jury was completed, which is as follows: F. M. Carroll, T. Y. Fennel, A. T. Herring, Allen Blackburn, W. K. Pigford, H. J. Duncan, J. B. Ezzell, Joseph Warren, J. D. McPhail, G. R. Boykin, Thos. Kelly, J. M. Pearson.

The jury was empaneled, and the court proceeded to the examination of witnesses.

Lonie Underwood said on examination that he passed the place of shooting a little before 12 o'clock on that day, and saw Avery Butler near said place (15 yards) with a double-barreled gun.

Thos. Wilson: He is a blacksmith and works in the shop of W. T. Williamson. Avery Butler was at the shop on April 10th, two days before the shooting, and cut off a sing from a rod of iron the same size of this piece (showing the piece found in the spine of the murdered man upon an autopsy), and asked how much powder it would take to kill a man with it forty feet off.

R. J. Boykin said that he was at work about one hundred yards from the deceased when shot, working for Mr. Thomas Boykin. He heard some one hollow "O, Lord!" and call for help. He ran to him, and found Ed. N. Butler lying on the ground with blood running from a wound in the hip. Butler's wife came down, and they toted him to the house.

Dr. J. A. Stevens, the physician who attended the murdered man and made the autopsy, assisted by Dr. Holliday, was next called. At this time we go to press. The court will meet this morning at 9:30, and continue the trial. The remainder of the evidence will be given in full next week.

Interesting Statistics about the Southern M. E. Church.

T. B. Kingsbury in Wilmington Messenger.]

The General Conference of the Southern Methodist Church assembles next week at St. Louis. It will sit for three or four weeks. The returns for the year just published show:

Traveling preachers, 4,862—increase, 175. Local preachers, 6,269—decrease, 40. White members, 1,161,606—increase, 38,168. Colored members, 520—decrease, 125. Indian members, 3,833—decrease, 1,125. Total preachers and members, 1,177,150. Total net increase, 37,053. Number of Sunday Schools, 12,589—increase, 374. Number of teachers, 88,842—increase 33,148. Number of scholars, 694,533—increase, 21,637. Number of churches, 11,767—increase, 335. Number of parsonages, 2,561—increase, 203.

Killed by his Uncle.

HIGH POINT, N. C., May 3.—Jim Gable, a negro, was killed here to-night by his uncle, Stephen Cathey. Gable went to Cathey's door and knocked. Cathey took up his gun, and told his wife he was going to have some fun. He asked who was there, and receiving no answer the door was opened, and Cathey fired instantly, killing Cable.

Cathey gave himself up, and claims that he was only trying to frighten Gable.

A PROPHECY.

My little girl with eyes so blue
And such bewitching tresses,
And lips so soft and rosy, too,
That smile at my caresses.

So kind you are—so good and pure—
With not a soul to hate you,
That, darling, I am very sure
Your happiest years await you.

For, though you're sitting on my knee,
A tiny winsome maiden,
'Tis plain that some day you will be
A very sweet old lady.

—Ladies' Home Journal.

Glasses in a Broadway Car.

It might not have been strange in these days of myopic misery, but the passengers in a Broadway car smiled a little and thought it was funny when they looked about to find that every one of the nine passengers (four men, three women, a young girl and a boy) was wearing spectacles. And then a man in middle life came in, and everybody watched him while he drew his newspaper from his pocket, took out his spectacle case, put on his spectacles with deliberate care and looked all about him to find every pair of eyes in the car snuffing at him from behind like disks of glistening glass. Everybody looked just a little more amused than before, and when the conductor came in to collect his fares, with a pair of gold rimmed glasses perched upon his nose, the young girl looked at the boy and giggled, the boy smiled broadly back, while the old gentleman called out with a Boythorn roar: "Bless my soul! We're all in the same basket!"—New York Evening Sun.

Two Boston Millionaires.

A couple of Boston millionaires whom I know, Sears and Gray, live in one of the suburbs of Boston and used to drive in together. There is a toll gate on the road which they travel. One morning they started in earlier than usual. They had learned that there was a large cargo of sugar to be sold by the underwriters. It was a big deal, and Sears and Gray concluded that they had the inside track of the deal. When they reached the toll gate Sears said:

"Gray, you must pay the toll today."

"I won't do it," Gray replied. "I paid for baiting (feeding) the horse yesterday, and I won't pay the toll today."

"Well, I won't," said Sears.

They kept up this cross fire for some minutes, and failing to agree, Sears turned the horse around and drove back home, Gray going with him. They discovered when it was too late that if they had gone into the city they would have made $400,000 in that deal.—Chicago Times.

A Breathing Exercise.

To expand the lungs: Go into the open air, stand erect, throw back the head and shoulders, and draw in the air through the nostrils as much as possible.

After having thus filled the lungs through the nostrils, raise your arms, and, while they are extended, suck in the air. When you have thus forced the arms backward with the chest open, change the process by which you drew in your breath till the lungs are emptied. Go through this process several times a day and it will enlarge the chest, give the lungs better play, and serve very much to ward off consumption.—Christian Union.

Previous to July 6, 1785, English money was in use in the United States. On that date the continental congress established the dollar, although the exact weight was not fixed until Aug. 3, 1786, when it was made to equal that of the old Spanish dollar.

Rising and Falling in Church.

A well known Indiana member of congress had as a visitor recently a constituent from the backwoods who was not very well acquainted with the interior of the house of divine worship, but who had thoroughly determined that he would see everything there was to be seen at the national capital during his stay here. Sunday morning, therefore, he announced that he was going to church.

Now, the Indiana member was not much of a churchgoer himself. In fact, he usually devotes his Sunday mornings to his correspondence, which has fallen behind in the course of the week. He allowed his constituent to wander off by himself to find a place of worship. About 1 o'clock the Indiana man returned. His host asked him where he had been. He responded in a matter of fact sort of way that he had been to a well known Episcopal church in the neighborhood, which he named.

"How did you get along?" said the host. "Didn't you feel a bit strange?"

"Oh, no," said the Indiana man solemnly. "I felt all right. I riz and fell with them every time."—Washington Letter in New York Tribune.

Will Excel Phileas Fogg.

Already the achievement of Phileas Fogg—the prophetic vision of a French savant—becomes as a tale that is told, for within a very short time, as has been shown, we are to see the earth girdled in fifty-eight days. But marvelous as all this seems, the record is to be still further reduced by nearly one-half, and there will be nothing to prevent those who desire it from making the trip from London and back again in a space of time that will totally eclipse the record of Jules Verne's hero, who, by dint of great effort and unfailing ingenuity, completed his journey and doubled the fortune he had wagered on the result of his attempt.

With the completion of the Russian Transcontinental railway, an enterprise now well assured, the tourist may leave London on a given day and in ten days and nine hours arrive at Vancouver; he can proceed thence to Vladivostock in ten days and eighteen hours; he can push on to St. Petersburg in eleven days and eleven hours and reach London again in two days and twenty hours—a total of thirty-five days and ten hours.—Walter P. Phillips in The Journalist.

A Bird That Kills Rattlers.

Riding in California one day my companion called attention to a bird in the road ahead of me. It was something like a prairie chicken, but much more slender and graceful in build. It was not using its wings, but it moved very rapidly, and we had to keep the horse in a pretty good trot to keep up with it. My friend told me that it was a "road runner," a bird that was noted there for its pedestrian accomplishments, and a peculiar habit they have is to walk always in the center of the road.

When one of these birds meets a rattlesnake it behaves in such a coy manner that it leads the snake to think it will become the victim of its charm, and while it is keeping the snake in doubt as to its intentions it runs about in the cactus and picks off the thorns with its bill, dropping them in a circle around the snake until it has him completely surrounded by cactus thorns. Then it flies to some elevation and sits there to watch the snake stick himself to death on the thorns trying to get out of the ring.—J. S. Normile in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Improvement in Artificial Limbs.

The latest improvement in artificial limbs consists in forming the leg and foot part of a single piece of wood, having the grain curved naturally in its growth, such pieces being procured from the parts of the trunk contiguous to the roots and branches of trees. Limbs made in this way are stronger with the same amount of wood remaining in them than when made of parts and glued together, and are made waterproof, which is a valuable feature when the occupation of the wearer exposes it to constant dampness, or to water itself, as in fishing, mining, dredging, etc. By making limbs in this manner from natural curves in the growth of the wood it has become practicable to make light and substantial artificial feet, adapted to partial amputations of the foot.—New York Telegram.

The Snake Was Hungry.

Capt. T. J. Tucker, who lives just north of this city, is telling a remarkable snake story among his friends around town. It seems that the captain was fishing in Lake Ivanhoe and had been lucky enough to catch a pretty good sized trout. Thinking he would clean it before returning home he sat down on the bank of the lake, and as he was washing the fish, with his hand in the water, he suddenly felt something pulling at one of his fingers. Imagine his surprise and consternation when, upon looking down at his finger, he saw a large moccasin snake had hold of it. With a sudden jerk he pulled his finger out of his snakeship's mouth, the only harm done being that considerable skin was scraped off in the act.—Orlando Record.

Musk from Microbes.

Artificial musk appears to be a thing of the near future. The announcement is made that at the laboratory of the Gesundheitsamt in Berlin a Japanese physician named Kitisato, a pupil of Koch, has isolated a microbe from an infusion of hay which has the property of producing a powerful odor of musk. The microbe can be cultivated in any part of the nutrient media, but thrives best on the potato and rice preparation. The cultures are at first reddish in color, afterwards becoming rust or tile colored. When the cultures are exhausted with alcohol the latter possesses the color of tincture of musk.—Montreal Star.

The total population of the earth is about 1,200,000,000, of which 36,214,000 die yearly, 98,840 daily, 4,020 every hour and 67 every minute. The number of births is 36,792,000 yearly, 1,000,800 daily, 4,200 every hour, an average of 76 every minute.

A Rare Relic Discovered.

Near Patras a sarcophagus has been discovered richly sculptured. The bas relief represents a wild boar hunt, in which are seen the huntsmen divided into two groups, seven of them being without beard and one bearded. This last is in the act of stopping a boar, running at full speed, and has his foot on the snout. The rest are pressing forward to slay the animal with hatchets and arrows. The work is highly finished and of the Roman period, but very probably copied from an original of Hellenic workmanship. Inside the sarcophagus a skeleton was found.—Chicago Herald.

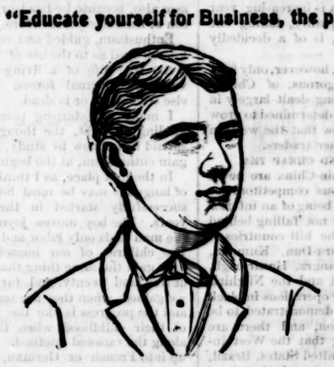
"Educate yourself for Business, the professions are full and the age demands it."



YOUNG MEN WANTED.

The business interests of the country demand wide-awake, energetic, enthusiastic, honest and competent young men. Thousands of young men are looking for situations, but it is difficult to find the right man when there is a place to be filled. Are you competent? Are you ready? The young men for whom the world is looking, and for whom there is always a place, are those possessing a thorough business education—those capable of doing their work in a business-like manner. If you lack this practical education, SADLER'S BRYANT & STRATTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, 10 and 12 N. Charles Street, Baltimore, Md., now in its twenty-fifth year, is prepared to furnish it. It teaches business methods in a business manner, on business principles. Its COURSE OF STUDY embraces thorough instruction in everything necessary for preparing young men to enter active business life. There is no other Commercial Training School that is held in such high esteem by the better class of business men; that is PATRONIZED by so mature and cultivated a class of PUPILS, or has so large a number of GRADUATES in lucrative positions.

GIRLS IN BUSINESS.

The question is often asked: "What shall we do with our boys?" Why not "What shall we do with our girls?" Why should they not be fitted for some regular occupation as well as our boys?

Parents do not expect the state to give their daughters a finished education in music and the fine arts, but neglect to have them taught those things that will be of importance to them in time of adversity. The wheel of fortune turns swiftly 'round—the rich of to-day may be the poor of to-morrow. Should they not, therefore, be prepared for any emergencies that may arise by having a thorough business education?

The doors of the business world are now open to women equally with men, and merchants are ready to give them lucrative employment whenever fitted to do the work required. Girls with a good business education are in demand as bookkeepers, cashiers, private secretaries, stenographers, typewriters, &c.

Young ladies will find at SADLER'S BRYANT & STRATTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Baltimore, refined and pleasant surroundings and an opportunity of fitting themselves for independence that will render them the equals of young men in similar walks, without unsexing them in the least degree.

JOHNSTON'S VEGETABLE "NOLANDINE!"

The Great Virginia Vegetable Alterative, Blood Purifier and Renovator of the Human System has been used Successfully in the following Diseases, as Certificates will Attest:

Liver Complaint, Jaundice and Bilious Derangements; In Mercurial Blood Poison, Scrofulous and Eruptive Diseases, Costiveness, Indigestion, Flatulence, Periodical Sick Headache, and Female Complaints.

TESTIMONIALS:

Derangement of the Liver.

RICHMOND, VA., July, 1885.

This is to certify that I have known of the superior qualities of JOHNSTON'S VEGETABLE NOLANDINE for the past ten years, and during that time, at intervals, have had occasion to use it in person and in my family, and have always found it a sure cure for derangements of the liver and kidneys, indigestion, headache, &c., and a good tonic.

L. C. DAVIS,

Kidney Affections.

ROBIOW'S STATION,
CHESTERFIELD COUNTY, VA.,
March 25, 1885.

Mr. J. W. Johnston:

Dear Sir,—Having suffered for year, with a chronic affection of the kidneys, derangement of the liver, and my general system charged with malarial poisons I found no relief from treatment of medicine until I used Vegetable Nolandine. I am now free from above complaints, and to Nolandine am I indebted for this restoration to health. I honestly recommend it to all persons suffering from above diseases.

WILLIAM DICKINSON,
Superintendent of Coal Mines.

Bilious Derangement.

RICHMOND, VA., May 1885.

I can cheerfully recommend JOHNSTON'S VEGETABLE NOLANDINE to any one suffering from Liver or Kidney complaints and bilious derangement of the system. Its prompt and permanent action in my case affords me pleasure to recommend it to others similarly affected.

Dyspepsia and Catarrh.

409 E. CLAY STREET,
RICHMOND, VA., April 19, 1886.

J. W. Johnston, Proprietor Nolandine:

During the past twelve months I have had frequent opportunities of testing the curative properties of your Vegetable Nolandine in the following diseases, and in not a single case did it fail to accomplish all that you claim for it: Dyspepsia and other Catarrhal affections of the stomach and bowels, catarrhal affections of the kidneys and bladder, uterine catarrh and irregularities, malarial complications and habitual constipation, and as a general tonic and alterative I have found it very efficacious. Yours truly,

JAS. H. GARLICK, M. D.

Malaria.

OFFICE CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO RAILWAY COMPANY,
RICHMOND, VA., March 1, 1885.

I lived on lower James river for eight years in the malarial district. My system was thoroughly charged with this deadly poison. I exhausted the usually prescribed and domestic remedies without any benefit. I was induced to try JOHNSTON'S VEGETABLE NOLANDINE. Before using two bottles my liver was aroused from its long torpor, and am now enjoying the best of health. My wife and children derived the same benefits from "Nolandine."

J. A. WYATT.

Chills and Fever.

FLEET, KING AND QUEEN CO., VA.,
January 31, 1887.

I was afflicted with chills and fever during the fall of last year. I could stop them with quinine, but they wouldn't stay stopped. They would return the 7th, 14th, 21st, or 28th days. A friend gave me part of a bottle of Nolandine. I used it according to directions, and haven't had a chill since. Am in good health and weigh as much or more than I ever did.

E. S. WILSON.

Blood Poisoning.

RICHMOND, VA., July 13, 1887.

J. W. Johnston, Proprietor Nolandine:

Dear Sir,—I have taken your "Nolandine" for habitual constipation of eight years' standing, during which time I have tried many preparations, but I did not receive any relief until I used your preparation, for which I have received immediate and permanent benefits. Was also suffering with malarial and blood poisoning. I am now free from all such complications, and, am happy to say, enjoying exceptionally good health.

Yours truly,

J. B. DOWDEN,
Proprietor of Dowden's Dental Fluid.

Delicate Females.

412 EAST BROAD ST., RICHMOND, VA.

J. W. Johnston:

I feel it but just to recommend your valuable medicine, "Nolandine," for any trouble caused by torpid liver, or constipation produced by morphine or any drug used to subdue pain. As a tonic for females it is unsurpassed.

The above you are heartily welcome to use in any way you deem best, and I will personally tell any one what it will do, on application. Respectfully,

MRS. A. E. ANTHONY.

Blood Purifier.

RICHMOND, VA., October 1, 1886.

To whom it may concern:

For twelve months I was a fearful sufferer from chronic eczema, during which time I was in the hands of a most skilful physician, faithfully using his remedies, internal and external, without deriving any benefit whatever. I suffered night and day with the most intolerable itching, continuous headache, loss of sleep, appetite and strength. My kidneys and nervous system were fearfully deranged, and my body was covered with innumerable boils. By taking three (3) bottles of JOHNSTON'S VEGETABLE NOLANDINE I have been restored to perfect health. I regard Nolandine as the best blood purifier, and the most powerful tonic ever compounded, and I am not alone in this belief. Very respectfully yours, &c.,

H. B. GRUBBS.

Consumptive Diarrhœa.

I feel it my duty to make the fact known, for the benefit of those who may be suffering as I have done. The late Dr. Charles Bell Gibson, and other physicians in the city, pronounced my disease consumptive diarrhœa, and after three (3) years of treatment, during which time I derived no benefit whatever, they said my complaint was incurable. I was reduced to a mere shadow by loss of appetite, cough, diarrhœa, night sweats and sleeplessness. I had not strength to go up and down stairs without assistance.

I had my attention called to your "Vegetable Preparation, Nolandine," which I commenced taking as directed. In a few days my relations saw an improvement in my complexion. My strength and appetite increased. I began to be hopeful, and I assure you I was not disappointed. In the space of twenty (20) days I gained sixteen (16) pounds in weight, and have since come up to my usual weight. I am now enjoying the best of health, thanks to your most powerful "Nolandine."

I have published this for the benefit of suffering humanity. I am most gratefully yours, etc., T. W. CHALKLEY, of O. H. Chalkley & Co., Leather Dealers, Richmond, Va.

Liver Complaint.

OFFICE OF J. W. CALDWELL,
RICHMOND, VA.

Dear Sir,—For the benefit of persons suffering from Chronic Liver Complaint, I beg leave to call their attention to your vegetable preparation, "Nolandine." I regard it as a "cholagogue," combining also tonic and renovating properties, and in this respect differing from any medicine I have ever taken.

The effects of your "Nolandine" in my case, has been on the liver and secretions identical with calomel; at the same time, entirely free from nauseating and debilitating consequences following the use of that mineral.

I very cheerfully recommend your "Nolandine" for the diseases enumerated on your circulars, and am convinced from personal benefit derived from its use, that it must become a standard family medicine.

I am not alone in the very high estimate I place on "Nolandine," and trust it will be universally known and be, as it should be, the means of taking the place of mineral preparations for that class of diseases in which it has proved so successful and already gained such a reputation. Hoping that "Nolandine" may reach all persons suffering from bilious derangement, I subscribe myself respectfully yours,

JOHN W. CALDWELL.

A Family Medicine.

Having suffered for several years with liver complaint, indigestion and an obstinate form of cutaneous disease, after unsuccessfully using other remedies, I was advised by several physicians to try your celebrated preparation, "Nolandine."

Since thoroughly testing it, I can confidently recommend it as the best alterative blood purifier and liver invigorator I have ever used; and it can also be taken with much efficacy by delicate females. I consider it a valuable family medicine, possessing the advantages of "Mercury" without its injurious effects, and with pleasure offer my unsolicited testimony in favor of "Nolandine."

Very respectfully,

MRS. G. W. FRANCISCO,
Richmond, Va.

Torpid Liver.

A VALUABLE MEDICINE.—Under this head the Petersburg Daily Index has the following:

"We have received from Rev. Mr. Keiley the following testimonial in regard to the virtue of 'Nolandine,' which we cheerfully publish for the benefit of those who may be in need of such a medicine."

NOLANDINE.—Some time ago there was a notice of the above mentioned in the local columns of the Index, which attracted my attention. After a conference with one of the proprietors I procured a bottle of "Nolandine," and received so much benefit from its use that I tried a second one, and am now using the third. Having suffered indescribable tortures for more than forty years from a torpid liver this medicine has afforded me more relief, than anything I have ever used. A desire to benefit my fellow-creatures is my sole motive for publishing this statement.

JOHN D. KEILEY.

Dyspepsia.

I have for the last twelve years been afflicted with that terrible disease, dyspepsia; all the remedies, and I have taken many, only gave partial relief. About two years ago I took your "Nolandine"; since then my health has been and is now as good as it ever was. Can eat in moderation now food that two years ago I dared not touch. At the same time I was afflicted with a disease, I believe, of the skin; for the last fifteen years it has been a plague to me. It invariably made its appearance in February and lasted until April. When I got warm in bed it would commence itching. There was no eruption until I was compelled to scratch, then a little pimple, not as large as a pin's head, would appear, and then my misery commenced. I have laid many a cold winter's night without any covering until I could stand the cold no longer, and then would pull the cover over me and get snatches of sleep. I have not felt it since taking your valuable "Nolandine," which was taken for dyspepsia, and I believe that it has cured me of that plague. I write this to show you I have been cured by your valuable "Nolandine," invaluable to me. I owe you many thanks. I do not write this for publication, but if you think it may benefit any of our fellow-men similarly afflicted, you may use it as you think proper. Very respectfully,

JAMES L. EGE,
at the house of John H. Tyler & Co.

Heals Ulcers.

Dear Sir,—As a recipient of its healing powers, it affords me pleasure to testify to the efficacy of your remedy "Nolandine." For two years I have been afflicted with painful ulcers, following the slightest abrasion of the skin, disabling me from all labor and exercise. A single bottle of the "Nolandine" has not only healed the ulcers, but removed all predisposition to them, and I have no longer any fear of their return. Very truly yours,

THOS. B. BOTT,
Hanover county, Va.

Liver Complaint, Diarrhœa and Dyspepsia.

My attention was called to your "Nolandine," by the certificate of Mr. J. L. Ege. I had been suffering for two or three years with the Chronic Liver Complaint, Diarrhœa and Dyspepsia, with total loss of strength, energy and appetite, accompanied by sleeplessness. A single bottle of your "Nolandine" has restored me to health. To "Nolandine" I am indebted for this restoration. I would also state, in this connection, that during the several years of my sickness I tried many remedies, all of which proved to be entirely worthless in my case. Your "Nolandine" should be universally known. I am convinced, when tried, it will become a standard remedy. Any persons desiring further information will have it most cheerfully imparted by calling upon me.

Very truly and gratefully yours,
O. P. HANKINS, Richmond, Va.

Liver Invigorator.

RICHMOND, VA.

Dear Sir,—I very cheerfully testify to the unequalled efficacy, so far as myexperience extends, of "Nolandine" as an alterative and liver invigorator. In my own case it has proven a most efficient remedy, and yet been free from the injurious effects so often following the use of other medicines.

F. H. ALFRIEND.

Varicose Veins.

To the Nolandine Company:

Permit me to add my testimony to the curative properties of Nolandine.

For many years I have suffered from varicose veins. Twelve months ago I struck my leg against a chair, breaking one of the veins. The wound thus made could not be healed except for a short time then break out afresh. At times I suffered untold misery from local fever and most insufferable burning sensation. After using two (2) bottles of your "Vegetable Nolandine" the ulcerated places healed, the swelling disappeared, natural sleep was restored, and my nervous system composed.

As a vermifuge, Nolandine acted specifically on one of my children. As a blood purifier and general tonic, your Nolandine has no equal. Gratefully yours,

D. B. PROSSER,
at 1303 Main street, Richmond, Va.

WHERE TEA IS PRODUCED.

INDIA WILL RIVAL CHINA IN THE SUPPLY OF THE FUTURE.

Tea Came First from Java and Not from China—Enormous Prices Charged for the Drug at First—China's Exports Are Falling Off—Cheap Labor.

Contrary to the popular impression, we did not receive our first supplies of what was then known as "chaw," and drunk out of "silver porringers," from China, but from Java, which, until the Dutch obtained possession of the island, was an English settlement. The commerce in the herb could not, however, have been great, for at first the price ranged from £6 to £10 per pound. Even during the reign of Charles II and his brother it was disposed of at from fifteen shillings to fifty shillings, according to quality, the duty payable on every gallon of the beverage sold in the coffee houses being eightpence.

The tea trade was, however, in that era a comparatively small branch of commerce, being mainly a monopoly in the hands of the East India company. It was when the consumption increased enormously, while the business of supplying the demand was not too much subdivided, that it became and continued so remarkably lubrative. The prices were not high enough to be prohibitory, and yet were sufficiently good to permit of a handsome profit to growers, buyers, brokers and sellers. This is no longer the case. The people who expect to live by the traffic have multiplied out of all proportions to their customers, with the inevitable result that prices have been whittled down to a figure which admits of little margin. In China—so it is affirmed by those in a position to know—a suicidal attempt has been made by the native growers to recoup themselves for falling prices by more slovenly manufacture and even by flagrant adulteration. This, at least, is the verdict of a body so well qualified to pronounce on the evidence before them as the Shanghai chamber of commerce.

DECREASE IN CHINA'S EXPORT.

A fact even more conclusive is that while the exports of China tea have fallen off enormously, those of the newer tea producing districts have increased in an inverse ratio. It is known that between 1861 and 1886 the export decreased by 24,000,000 pounds, while that of Indian and Ceylon teas increased by nearly 35,000,000, and since then the disparity has been even greater. Thus it is obviously useless for China any longer to regard herself as able to control the tea trade of the world, or to conduct herself as if she were the prime producer. She may be fortunate, indeed, if India, Ceylon and Java leave her the second place in the struggle for supremacy.

The planters of Assam were the first to work their gardens on the principles of scientific high farming, and now they are reaping their reward. But of all the competitors who have disputed the China monopoly Ceylon is likely to prove the most formidable, though she entered the field so recently that tea was only regarded as a likely crop when the destruction of their coffee plantations compelled the owners of estates to try other products. Now, thanks to the experience of India with which the planters began, and to the advantages of climate and soil, the export of Ceylon tea is increasing year by year, while the quality, taking one season with another, is of a decidedly high standard.

These countries are, however, only two, if the two most vigorous, of China's rivals. Japan has long dealt largely in green tea, and seems determined to grow a great deal more, now that the western markets are open to her traders.

CHEAP LABOR AND CHEAP TEA.

Tonquin and Cochin-China are never likely to prove serious competitors for our custom, their tea being of an inferior brand. But Java is not falling behind in the race, and all the hill countries of India—Assam, Duhra-Dun, Kumaun, Darjiling, Cachar, Kangra, Hazaribagh, Chittagong, the Tarai and the Nilghiris—are extending their operations in black tea. Natal has been demonstrated to be a tea growing region, and there are grounds for believing that the West Indies, the southern United States, Brazil, Fiji, Australia, and even the south of Europe can produce fair marketable leaf. But there are other elements besides quality which enter into the tea growing industry, and the first of them is cheap labor. We must remember that in India and China a laborer capable of picking and firing leaf may be had for from twopence to sixpence per day, and that it is difficult for any other countries to enter into competition with regions where a primary margin of profit is so fully insured as in those portions of the east. It would be idle to attempt the appraisement of the different qualities of these teas. Apart from the fact that those best qualified to form an opinion rarely come to the task with a judicial mind, a great deal must be allowed for individual tastes. But most tea drinkers prefer the cheaper Indian and Cingalese teas to the ordinary "chops" from China, while it cannot be honestly contended that in nicety of preparation the latter are comparable with the former.

It is equally undeniable that the finer kinds of China tea possess distinctive qualities which have not yet been imitated by any other growths, and so long as Russia keeps her taste for the dearest "chops" of Congou so long will the Flower Land find a good market for her produce.—London Standard.

Cottonseed oil is the best salad oil in the world and it should be put upon the market on its merits, bearing its own name, and its excellence for all culinary purposes be persistently set forth until it receives popular approval and enters into as universal consumption as butter or lard.—Manufacturers' Record.

Tall femmes de chambre are now the fashion here; the taller the better, in order that they may be able without mounting on a footstool to look down on a high head gear in arranging it.—London Truth.

THE BOY AT EIGHTEEN.

The Things He Should Know, Because of the Great Advantages He Has.

A youth of eighteen, who is to have the best chances, should know how to study, and how to do it with enthusiasm also, because he has learned the lesson at least five years before.

Enthusiasm, guided and controlled by knowledge as to the use of the powers, is the true life of a living man, alive with the spiritual forces. Everything else is in sleep, or is dead.

I make my starting point, and my guiding thought, the thought that he should learn how to study, and should gain enthusiasm, at the beginning.

In the first place, as I think, the study of language may be most hopefully and successfully started in these earliest years. The boy moves joyously where the man finds only labor and weariness. The children of our households today may gain the same thing that we gained at five and twenty, and far more than we gained, when they are ten or twelve; and the progress is like the joyful song of their childhood, when they are led along the rational method. They grow up into French or German, as it were, as they grow up into English, and talk, and read, and sing in these languages just as they do in their own. Why should they not breathe enthusiasm with every breath of their learning? It was with a great price, indeed, that we obtained this freedom. But they were free born.

Let me say here that, in my judgment, every boy who has the best chances ought to have the mastery of the French or German language (I should say of both) before he is 18 years of age—a mastery kindred to that which he has of English. He should, also, have such a knowledge of Greek and Latin as will mean power in and over those languages, and will enable him to read them with ease and with satisfaction as he enters upon his college course. The man who knows the ancient languages as he ought to know them, will never contend against their holding a place in the education of all widely educated and roundly educated men.

The boy who has the best chances ought, in the years between twelve and eighteen, to be set forward on his course in history and the beginnings, at least, of the literature of his own language.

My feeling is that the boys who have the best chances should know something of music, and should, at least, see the opening of the door toward art studies. The opinion is now well established, I suppose, that all persons can be instructed in vocal music with a measure of success. I believe that the same thing can be accomplished in the line of instrumental music.

That the mathematical studies should be pursued energetically before the youth has reached the age of which we are speaking, I may add, is admitted by all. The men of the former generations and the men of our day agree at this point.—President Dwight in The Forum.

Wasn't Losing His Memory.

Scene—Scotch railway station. Ticket collector, in making his collection, finds an old gentleman fumbling in his pockets for his ticket.

Ticket Collector—Tickets, please.

Old Gentleman—I'm just lookin' for it.

Ticket Collector—Well, I'll look in again in a few minutes. See and have it ready then.

Ticket collector returns shortly; but the old gentleman is still hunting for it.

Ticket Collector (suddenly)—Why, you have it in your mouth, man!

Old Gentleman (giving him the ticket)—Oh, so I hae! Here you are!

Another gentleman in the carriage, as the train moves on, to first gentleman—I'm afraid your losing your memory, sir.

Old Gentleman—Nae fear o' that; nae fear o' that! The ticket was a fornicht ould, and I wis jist sookin' the date aff't!

Tableau.—Argonaut.

A Cheap Compromise.

In crossing Union square the other day a lady dropped her handkerchief, and a gamin of 10, who noticed the fact, ran after her and restored it.

"Thanks, child, thanks!" she replied, as she received the dainty fabric from his grimy hand. "Now, then, what can I do for you?"

"Nuthink," he replied.

"Oh, but I must reward your action in some way. How shall I do it?"

"Well, mum, if you are bound to do it, please give me a hundred dollars instead of presenting me with a mansion on Fifth avenue. Taxes is high, and dad is out of work, and we don't want no dead horse to carry these hard times."

She made it ten cents and another vote of thanks, and he seemed perfectly satisfied.—New York Sun.

A Ginger Bread Barometer.

It is nothing more or less than the figure of a general made of ginger bread which Clavette buys every year at the Place du Trone. When he gets home he hangs his purchase on a nail. You know the effect of the atmosphere on ginger bread. The slightest moisture renders it soft; in dry weather, on the contrary, it grows hard and tough. Every morning on going out Clavette asks his servant:

"What does the general say?"

The man forthwith applies his thumb to the figure and replies:

"The general feels flabby about the chest; you'd better take your umbrella."

On the other hand, when the symptoms are "hard and unyielding" our worthy colleague sallies forth in his new hat.—Almanach de l'Atelier.

The Queen's Baggage.

Among the impedimenta with which the Queen started on her continental tour may be mentioned three coachmen, nine grooms, eight horses, one donkey, three carriages, seventy-two trunks, three special beds, a special cooking stove, wine, two doctors, one surgeon, one surgeon accoucheur for the Princess Beatrice, three ladies in waiting, nine women servants, one lord, two equerries and seven dogs.—London Letter.

A Temple of Serpents.

The small town of Werda, in the kingdom of Dahomey, is celebrated for its temple of serpents, a long building in which the priests keep upwards of 1,000 serpents of all sizes, which they feed with birds and frogs brought to them as offerings by the natives. These serpents, many of them of enormous size, may be seen hanging from the beams across the ceiling, with their heads hanging downward and in all sorts of strange contortions. It often happens that some of these serpents make their way out of the temple into the town, and the priests have great difficulty in coaxing them back. To kill a serpent intentionally is a crime punishable by death, and if a European were to kill one the authority of the king would scarcely suffice to save him. Many of the monsters in the "Serpent Temple" are large enough to enfold a large ox in their coils.—St. Louis Republic.

Antiquity of Petroleum.

Petroleum has been known since the dawn of history. For a number of years it was known to the Indians and early settlers as Seneca oil, and used as a medicine, chiefly as a liniment.

The first systematic boring for petroleum began about 1857 to 1859, and in a few years the product increased enormously. At present the yearly output is between 20,000,000 and 30,000,000 of barrels, and new fields are constantly being opened. Russia has a great oil field in Transcaucasia, near Baku.—Golden Days.

Shakespeare is well appreciated by the higher educated natives in India, and last year a large number of his plays were published in the vernacular. "As You Like It" and "The Winter's Tale" were translated into Tamil and Telegu for Madras; "The Taming of the Shrew" came out in the Punjab, and "Hamlet," "Much Ado About Nothing" and "The Comedy of Errors" were great favorites in the northwest provinces.

London fire department statistics show that although theatre fires have increased greatly in number, they are far less damaging than formerly, owing to the improvements in the apparatus for suppressing them. The same statistics show that the death rate from fires in London has fallen from 238 in 1887 to 19 in 1889. This is also laid to the improved apparatus.

The table upon which Prince Bismarck signed the preliminaries of peace with Thiers at Versailles in February, 1871, was the only souvenir of the campaign which the Iron Chancellor bore back to Germany with him. He paid the Versailles landlord twenty-four francs for it.

A New York tailor spent $9,000 in experimenting on a remedy for trousers which bag at the knees, and then hung himself because he could not find it. He was hardly dead before a surgeon took up the subject and discovered the long sought remedy. All you have to do is to have your kneepans pressed backward so that they won't strain the cloth.—Detroit Free Press.

Gentleness in the Family.

Opposite to my summer home is a pretty cottage where a young couple with their children—two boys—come for the holidays; the children, aged I should say, 4 and 6 years. Every morning the father, when he leaves the gate, whither he is escorted by his boys, turns and lifts his hat gravely and courteously; the broad sun hats of the babies are promptly lifted in return, and "Good-by, papa," "Good-by, my boys," rings out on the soft air, making melody for all who care to hear. I often wonder if they know how much cordiality these truly gentle exchanges carry to their unknown neighbor across the way, or what pleasant pictures they suggest to my fancy.—Cor. Ladies' Home Journal.

Sealskins.

The price of sealskins has come down wonderfully in the last few years. A dialogue between two ladies of this city sheds light on this.

Both ladies wore garments of sealskin, but the elder of the two had a coat of the vintage of 1880, with a golden brown tinge, while the other's jacket was jet black, after the present fashionable dye.

"Why don't you buy a new sealskin?" asked the latter.

"I can afford to wear a shabby sealskin, for when I bought mine sealskin coats cost $350, while any one today can buy one for $75," was the annihilating reply, "and that's not allowing for the mark down, either."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

How to Tell a Saxon from a Celt.

The Celt and the Saxon may be distinguished by the simplest of prudential tests. Will the man spend ten minutes on Monday to mend a gate, and so save five minutes every day after? Or will he spend the five minutes every day for twenty years, because he will not spare the ten minutes to effect the needed repair? In the former case he is a Saxon; in the latter, a Celt.—Frances Power Cobbe in Forum.

To Keep Machinery from Rusting.

In order to keep machinery from rusting take one ounce of camphor, dissolving it in a pound of melted lard; take off the scum and mix as much fine black lead as will give it iron color. Clean the machinery and smear it with this mixture. After twenty-four hours rub clean with soft linen cloth. It will keep clean for months under ordinary circumstances.—Philadelphia Record.

Pearls are carefully taken out by the fishers and sold to wholesale merchants in Bombay. The difference in the price paid to the original pearl fisher and that paid by an American lady to her jeweler on Broadway or the Rue de la Paix amounts to about 50 per cent.—not more.

Mount Hercules, a peak in the Island of Papua, which was discovered in 1881, is said to be 32,763 feet in height, being 3,781 feet higher than Mount Everest in the Himalayas, usually credited as being the highest in the world.

Inside of a Whale's Mouth.

The great Greenland whale has no teeth, its baleen plates, or whalebone, taking their place. Along the center of the palate runs a strong ridge, and on each side of this there is a wide depression, along which the plates are inserted. These are long and flat, hanging free, and are placed transversely—that is, across the mouth, with their sides parallel and near each other. The base and outer edge of the plates are of solid whalebone, but the inner edges are fringed, filling up the interior of the mouth and acting as a strainer for the food, which consists of the small swimming mollusks and medusæ, or jelly fishes. This whale rarely, if ever, swallows anything larger than a herring, shoals of these small creatures being entangled in the fibers of the baleen, the water which does not escape from the mouth being expelled by the blow holes. Though the cavity of this whale's mouth is large enough to contain a ship's long boat, the gullet is not larger than a man's fist. The lower jaw has neither baleen nor teeth, but has large, fleshy lips, within which the upper is received when the mouth is closed.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Value of Hand Reading.

I am acquainted with a sculptor who declined an important commission for a statue solely because he did not trust the hand of the man who gave the order. At the time the artist was considered little less than a crank. But his hand judgment turned out to be correct after all, for another sculptor, having undertaken the statue, had to carry his case into the courts in order to get payment.

One of these hand readers fell in love with a young and beautiful girl. He became betrothed to her, although there were some peculiar characteristics in the shape and touch of her fingers that he disliked. The matter weighed on his mind. He was a queer sort of fellow and plain spoken. "My dear," he said to her one day, "you are a very lovely, estimable girl, and I hold you in the highest affection. But the more I study your hand the less I like it. I am afraid we cannot be happy together. Let us break the engagement." They did. She married another man and eloped with a third in less than four years.—Ralph Edmunds in Kate Field's Washington.

A Lucky Bricklayer.

A recent recipient at the court of Constantinople of the Turkish Medal for Art and of the Order of the Mejidieh is the mason who put up a Russian stove in the sultan's palace. It appears that the sultan was struck with the stove at the Russian consulate at Constantinople, and had a similar structure of bricks and tiles ordered from Odessa. The Russian laborer who was sent with it to put it up was a simple moujik, but the sultan was so delighted with the man's skill in bricklaying—an art unknown in Turkey as applied to the building of fireplaces—that, besides a money present of $250, he conferred the above distinctions on the peasant.—New York World.

Its Share in Transportation.

Of the total amount of naval stores received at Wilmington on Friday, 2nd inst., over all the railroad and river lines of transportation, the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway carried in 26 per cent. of the spirits of turpentine, 47 per cent. of the rosin and 20 per cent. of the tar.

Mortuary Report for April.

The mortuary report of the town of Fayetteville for the month of April shows a remarkably low death rate, there having been only 8 deaths during that time, as follows: 3 white, 3 colored, 2 at birth. This rate, continued through the year, would give an average of little over .001 of the total population of the city.

Lodges Invited.

Cross Creek Lodge, No. 4, I. O. O. F., has extended an invitation to the Lodges at Red Springs, Lumber Bridge, Hope Mills, Jonesboro, Wade, Dunn and Galatia to participate in the memorial exercises here on the 12th, and turn out in a body. The OBSERVER hopes to see all the above-named Lodges well represented.

Improvements.

The McDaniel block on Person street, occupied by stores, offices, etc., is receiving a new coat of paint, besides other work of remodeling and renovating, making it a handsome row of buildings.

Mr. Thos. H. Sutton is having extensive improvements made on his dwelling in East Fayetteville, rendering it more than ever desirable and attractive.

Memorial Exercises.

The indications are good for a beautiful and impressive observance of Confederate Memorial services on Monday afternoon, 12th inst. The published programme has given the public detailed information of the order of march, etc., by which it is seen that a general participation of all classes of the citizens, schools and civic associations is invited and expected.

The Ladies Memorial Association are especially indebted to Mr. H. R. Novitzky and his Nine, and to the Fayetteville Cornet Band, Mr. D. F. Wemyss leader, for their kindness in furnishing vocal and instrumental music for the occasion.

New Organization of an Old Business.

The sale of the well-known drug business of Messrs. T. W. Broadfoot & Co. was consummated last week, Mr. W. C. McDuffie, Jr., becoming proprietor and manager, with a lease of five years of the Hinsdale building—long recognized, from its ample store and warehouse room, as one of the best stands in the city.

Mr. McDuffie well deserves and doubtless will attain the gratifying success which his friends wish for him: the high stand taken in his examination as pharmacist, his excellent and systematic business habits and his personal popularity easily give him an enviable place in a business in which Fayetteville leads the State.

Don't Let It Die Out.

We are glad to know that our suggestion of a few weeks back that the young people of Fayetteville form a literary society or club has met with favor, and we hope that the idea will not be permitted to fall into "innocuous desuetude."

The first step, we suppose, toward the proper formation of such a society would be a meeting of those interested, to draft a plan of organization, setting forth its scope, design, etc.; with an election of the necessary officers at either that or a subsequent meeting. A hearty participation in the movement by both sexes would be very desirable, and is, in fact, essential to its success. We know of but few forms of recreation that are not benefited by female influence and rendered more attractive by female society, while such an association as is contemplated could be made very pleasant to ladies. A woman's domestic life in a small town, even under the happiest conditions and the most favorable circumstances, is narrow and contracted, meagre of novelty and unfruitful of amusement—and it is difficult to fully understand how welcome to them is an occasional diversion from an irksome and monotonous routine.

Commissioners' Court.

The regular monthly meeting of the County Commissioners was held in the court-house Monday, with the following members present: A. B. Williams, K. J. Rhodes, Neill R. Blue, W. J. Buie, M. A. Gillis.

J. B. Troy was appointed to collect the arrears of taxes for the years 1886-'87—transferred to the county by the bondsmen of Neill McQueen, late sheriff, and W. A. McArthur, tax-collector.

Sheriff J. B. Smith tendered his official bond in the sum of fifty thousand dollars, which was accepted and ordered recorded.

It was next ordered that no applications for reductions of valuation of property, &c., on account of alleged excessive taxation, unless in cases of clear and manifest error, be heard in the future, except at the time appointed by law. Applicants for exemption from poll-taxes on account of being over age, must, in all cases, assign satisfactory proof of the same.

Bills for the past month's expenses were audited, and the Board adjourned to meet again on Monday, the 19th inst.

The Egypt Coal.

The Raleigh News and Observer of Saturday, 3rd inst.. says:

Mr. Sam'l A. Henszey, President of the Egypt Coal Company, who was here yesterday, secured all necessary papers for the incorporation of the company. Mr. Henszey says that the shaft at the mine is being sunk deeper every day, and that the deeper he goes the greater is the quantity and the better the quality of the coal.

Mr. Henszey needs to sink his shaft very deep, with eminently satisfactory results as to quantity, if he would adequately meet the demands which the near future will make upon the capacity of the Egypt Coal Mine. The industrial development is general and rapid of the great section traversed by the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway and tributary to the line, with the establishment of manufacturing enterprises calling for and utilizing vast stores of raw material, while Southport, from its advantageous position, is presenting claims not to be ignored as the great coaling station of the south Atlantic coast.

Beware!

An "industrial department" is to be added to the curriculum of Salem Female Academy which will include cooking in the list of its accomplishments.

There is a tendency to encroach on the liberty of the free-born American citizen by this new departure which may well "give us pause;" there is a tendency to place an amount of despotic power in individual hands which should not be intrusted to any mere mortal—least of all, a woman. When the "sweet girl graduates" of Salem Female Academy get their diplomas, and pass out into the world and set up shop for themselves, they hold in their hands the means of compelling the most rebellious young husband to instant and abject subjection: they have only to threaten to cook his dinner—and make him eat it!

Machinery Arriving.

A portion of the machinery for the new bucket factory to be operated by Maj. A. A. McKethan has already arrived, and the remainder is expected to be here in a few days, when every thing will be placed in position, and another new and important industry added to the list of manufacturing enterprises of Fayetteville. Another hopeful sign of the progress of Fayetteville is the almost unlimited number of new and handsome dwellings now in course of erection all over the town, from centre to circumference. In conversation with some of our most public-spirited and enterprising citizens this week, it was learned that there was not at this time an empty dwelling in Fayetteville, neither was there an idle mechanic or laborer of any kind, as for that, who wanted to and would work.

The Strange Death of a Horse.

Last Tuesday Col. J. B. Starr's iron-gray mare, attached to the buggy, was standing in rear of the Episcopal Church. When young Mr. Joe Starr came out of the churchyard the horse and vehicle had disappeared, and were found a few minutes afterwards in the creek—the horse drowned. The supposition is that the animal, going into the water to drink, suddenly plunged over his depth, and the weight of the buggy held him down and prevented his escape.

A Handsome Entertainment.

The benefit entertainment for the Wilmington Light Infantry—held on the scene of the recent banquet, with the flags still flying and the bunting fluttering—was one of the most enjoyable affairs that has ever taken place in Wilmington. The ladies enlisted their dear hearts in the cause, work-like Trojans (or Trojanesses?), and it was a success, of course. We are glad of it—as we always will be at anything which contributes to the good fortune of the Wilmington Light Infantry.

Early Closing.

We are glad to know that many of the business men have acceded to the request of the clerks for early closing of the stores during the summer months, and we hope that the concession will be universally made. They are faithful toilers, and certainly deserve all the recreation that can be legitimately accorded to them.

The New Sheriff.

Capt. J. B. Smith, the new high sheriff of Cumberland county, works into the official grooves with the opening of court as smoothly as if the machinery had been oiled and running for years, and gives satisfaction to all with whom his duties bring him in contact.

Directors' Meeting.

Notice is hereby given that a meeting of the Board of Directors of Fayetteville & Albemarle Railroad Company will be held in the town of Fayetteville on Tuesday, May 20th, at 12 M.

To Deliver the Address.

Hon. W. J. Green will deliver the annual address at the closing exercises of Fremont High School and Military Academy.

Greensboro City Election.

Hon. Jas. W. Forbiz, present incumbent, was reelected mayor of Greensboro last Monday, with a good board of aldermen—our congratulations.

Strawbessy Festival.

There will be a Strawberry Festival at the Y. M. C. A. Rooms next Tuesday night, May 13th, for the benefit of the Boy's Department. The public are kindly invited.

Improvement at Cumberland Mills.

Quite extensive improvements are being made at Cumberland Mills, and the company expect now to have the factory supplied with electric lights soon and other modern conveniences.

Judicial.

The Democratic Executive Committee of the Sixth Judicial District has been called to meet in Goldsboro tomorrow, to name the time and place for holding the 6th Judicial District Convention.

School Girls' Refrain.

The mischievous rhymster of the pretty girls of Oxford Female Seminary has perpetrated the following refrain for the closing days of the spring session:

"Three more weeks, and then vacation,
And then we stand on Oxford station;
No more beef and no more hash,
No more of Horner's boys to 'mash.'"

Advancing.

Fayetteville is advancing. The handwriting on the wall is so plain that even he who runs may read. Two large planing mills are among the latest industries of Fayetteville; one by Messrs. Daughty & Co., of Wilmington, Del., and the other by Mr. N. B. Alexander, of this city. Let onward, march, be the watchword.

Your Attention, Please.

Life is too short and time too precious to lose a good opportunity in this day and time. We therefore ask your attention this week to the new advertisements in today's OBSERVER of Rose & Leak, A. J. Cook & Co, R. M. Orrell, Burns & Bledsoe, C. G. Cain, H. McD. Robinson, Jno. B. Broadfoot, J. D. McNeill & Co, Johnston's Vegetable Nolandine Co., C. G. Cain, No. 2, A. S Huske, Agt., W. N. Tillinghast, J. Foard & Co., Fayetteville Printing & Binding Co.

Fire Company Practice.

The Chicora Steam Fire Engine Company were out for practice on Tuesday evening last, deploying on Hay street just as the moon was rising, and being quickly surrounded by admiring spectators. They speedily had three streams in full play, casting the water with ease over the flag-staff on the lofty Thornton building.

It is a most excellent organization, made up of the best material, and should always be able to count on the hearty support and cooperation of the community.

Eardman—Fife Meetings.

Mr. Jno. Underwood, of the committee of arrangement, gives us the notes of the order of exercises incident to the approaching District Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Rev. W. J. Eardman, the well-known able expounder and lecturer of Scriptural story and Bible history, will conduct a series of meetings in the Tabernacle on Gillespie street in advance of the assembling of the convention, commencing on Saturday, 24th inst., and continuing until Thursday, 29th inst.—the date of the commencement of the sessions of the District Convention, which will continue through June 1st. After this will come the Fife meetings.

These meetings cannot fail of interest to all classes, and we feel that they will command the attention of the whole intelligent and thoughtful public, without appeal from us.

A Very Important meeting.

The joint meeting of the magistrates and commissioners of Cumberland county, which takes place on the first Monday in June, will be of great importance to all classes of the citizens of this county. Over and above the duty which will devolve upon them of electing a board of commissioners, the question of building a new court-house or of putting in good repair—adequately providing for the security of official documents, etc.—the present structure, will be discussed and probably definitely decided. At that meeting, Maj. Jno. Evans tells us, a capable architect's plan for remodeling the present building, with safety vault on lower floor, will be submitted, with estimate of the cost.

We have repeatedly urged the absolute necessity of immediate action for the preservation of public property pertaining to county offices and in charge of their custodians. It remains for the people to say, through their servants, the magistrates, what shall be the amount of expenditure for this purpose, and how applied.

Atlantic Coast Line Southern Extension.

The engineer corps of the Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Company, Mr. Latta in command, arrived here on Monday evening last, and it is their design to commence work immediately on the southern extension of the Wilson & Fayetteville branch of the great Coast Line system. Their objective point will be Rowland, with a total distance of about forty miles to complete the southern through connections; and, after some finishing up of the location of the line, we may expect grading and construction to begin in earnest.

The advantages of Fayetteville as a great centre of railroad radiation and activity are being fully appreciated and steadily utilized; but the end is not to be until we have pierced south west North Carolina, laying bare its mineral riches great forestry resources and wealth of fruitful soil.

A Story of San Domingo.

We have just finished reading "1791: A Story of San Domingo," by Edward W. Gilliam, M. D.—a volume, very attractive in typographic style and make-up, issued from the publishing-house of Messrs. John Murphy & Co., Baltimore, Md.

It may very properly be called an historical romance, dealing in pleasing style with the history of the Island of San Domingo almost from its discovery, including the governorships of Columbus (brother of the Admiral), Boabdilla and other Spanish adventurers; the inhuman treatment of the aborigines, reaching a pitch of cruelty which accomplished their extermination; and, most entertaining of all, drawing a graphic picture of the culture and refinement which characterized the inhabitants for half a century prior to the fearful insurrection which expanded, through outrage and carnage, into revolution, and changed the destinies of this fair spot of earth.

The piece de resistance of Dr. Gilliam's literary feast is an epitomized review of the question of African slavery, presented very clearly to the mind of the reader in a conversation between two of the principal characters of the novel.

For the rest, the "Story of San Domingo" is given in simple but graceful style, is sufficiently intricate in plot for uninterrupted interest throughout, and is enlivened by entertaining incident from beginning to end. The book should have a special interest to the people of Fayetteville, as its author is a native of the town, growing up to manhood here, with relatives still in our midst, and is now a practicing physician in the city of Baltimore.

Out of the Dusty "Archives."

The other day we came across a stained and tattered sheet of paper, a copy of the "Carrier's Address of the Fayetteville Examiner, January 1st, 1882"—the last annual greeting ever uttered by that sterling paper to its patrons.

Perhaps in point of a generous overflow of the "divine afflatus" the "address" is not perfection, and it is burdened here and there by "needless Alexandrines, which, like a wounded snake, drag their slow length along," as listen to the following anti-dactylic jingle:

"And now, dear patrons, 'tis time to sing
Of autumn, winter, summer, spring,
When, in burning sun, with blistered feet,
In pattering rain and pelting sleet,
I trudged along the muddy street,
And at your doors did leave our sheet—
The news from far and near
Did weekly help you hear."

But the man who, in old times, lent his aid to this quaint and really beautiful custom, and devoted himself to the herculean task of composing a "carrier's address" was no "slouch." Just after the war the writer (who was then a callow youth who had not yet learned how little he really did know), was once or twice induced—by his goodness of heart and self-conceit combined—to essay the labor of making himself a poet when he wasn't born so; and to this day the memory lingers with him of the hideous hours of grinding and rhyming that his rash promise cost him. He now has a little better sense, and would sooner bind himself to write the inaugural speech of the Democratic President in 1893.

The late Walker Pearce wrote more than one "carrier's address" for the Fayetteville papers, a work which he performed with grace and ease—and his was genuine poetry.

Superior Court.

Superior Court convened here Monday, his Honor Judge Brown on the bench. Owing to the lateness of the hour of arrival of the judge and the solicitor—who were unavoidably detained—the usual charge to the grand jury was dispensed with, and the transaction of legal business was at once taken up.

Judge Brown is a native of Washington, N. C., is an affable, learned and able jurist, wearing the judicial ermine with credit alike to his constituents and to himself, and has already, in the short space of time during which he has been with us, deeply enshrined himself in the hearts of our people. The vigor and zeal with which Solicitor McNeill so ably prosecutes for the State is a warning to evil-doers, and justly entitles him to rank among the first prosecuting attorneys in the State.

Mr. Alex. Sessoms, of Glen Echo, was chosen foreman of the grand jury, and performs his duties with ease and satisfaction.

Up to the hour of going to press the following cases had been disposed of:

State vs. John Hatcher, escape; guilty—judgment suspended on payment of costs.

Frank Johnson, entering house and larceny; guilty—3 years in the penitentiary.

William McCallop, larceny; guilty—2 years in the penitentiary.

Robt. Murphy and Jennie Underwood, guilty—former sent to jail in default of payment of costs; the latter released.

There were disposed of besides 4 cases of affray and assault and battery.

On the Base-Ball Field.

A week or two ago we had occasion to chronicle the sweeping victory, on the "diamond," of the "Electric" base-ball club of the boys of Fayetteville, and we are now called upon to record a gallant contest between the "Electrics" and "Reapers," with M. N. Raynor as umpire and James Black as scorer, resulting in the triumph of the "Reapers" by a score of 28 to 14. Following are the nine of the latter (those of the "Electric" having been given week before last):

Harry McDonald, Captain.
c. Archie McMillan.
p. Leon Brandt.
1st b. Robert McGeachey.
2nd b. Dan Brown.
3rd b. Willie McKethan.
s. s. Allie Newberry.
l. f. Neill McRae.
r. f. Harry McDonald.
c. f. Herbert Atkinson.

Mr. F. B. Jones, of the Harnett bar, is here this week on professional business.

Johnston's Nolandine Co.

Johnston's Vegetable Nolandine is rapidly coming to the front as one of the greatest blood purifiers of this age. It is manufactured at Richmond Virginia, and the various complaints for which it proprietors claim that it has been most successfully used attest the genuineness of the remedy, a half page advertisement of which appears on the fourth page of today's OBSERVER. Read it and see for yourselves.

For sale by the following druggists: W. C. McDuffie, Jr., H. R. Horne, B. E. Sedberry & Son.

Personal Penclings.

Mr. W. D. Gaster spent a day or two in Greensboro last week.

Mr. John Roddick made a flying trip to Wilmington this week.

We are glad to see Mr. John Duncan Shaw, Jr., in the city this week—attending Superior Court.

Col. A. H. Worth, of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway, was in town last Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. J. H. Currie, of Wilmington, was in the city yesterday, spending the day with Mrs. N. A. Sinclair.

Miss Mary Webb, of Richmond Va., has been spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. A Moore, on Haymount.

Capt. J. E. Gilmer, of Winston, accompanied by his wife and daughter, has been in the city for the past few days.

Mrs. Jno. B. Broadfoot, accompanied by her lovely little daughter, Norcup, visited friends in Wilmington this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Grainger, of Wilmington, are making a visit with the family of Hon. J. C. MacRae, on Haymount.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Cook have returned from their wedding tour, and are receiving the hearty congratulations of their friends.

Mr. A. D. McGill, of Seventy-First township, member of the present General Assembly, is in town this week, in attendance on court.

It was feared for a short time the other day that Mr. Maurice O'Flynn had arrived from Washington City, but the report proved to be unfounded.

Rev. Dr. J. C. Huske visited Wilmington last week, attending the marriage of Mr. Herbert Smith and Miss Carrie Strange. We rejoice at his improved health.

Miss Pauline Thornton, a lovely young lady of this city, has returned home from a visit to Goldsboro, accompanied by her charming cousin, Miss Minnie Raynor.

Mrs. J. A. Worth went down to Currie on Monday afternoon, summoned to the bedside of her son-in-law, Mr. D. M. O'Hanlon, who, we deeply regret to learn, is extremely ill.

Mrs. W. B. Young, who has been quite ill for some time past, has so far recovered now as to be able to depart on the Short-Cut R. R. train on Monday morning for Wilson, to spend a short time with the family of Mr. Young.

Mr. W. H. Corner, of the well-known Baltimore firm of Corner & Sons—perhaps the largest naval stores house in this country—spent several days in Fayetteville during the past week, registered at the Hotel LaFayette, but part of the time the guest of Col. J. B. Starr.

Capt. Holcombe and Messrs. Latta and Paul Smith, of the Atlantic Coast Line engineer service, now have their headquarters at Fayetteville, preparatory to work on the line south. Mr. Smith is of our "home folks," and is warmly welcomed on his visit to his native place.

Mr R. T. Gray, of Raleigh—whose eloquent address at the recent Wilmington banquet places him foremost among the best speakers of the State in pleasing and graceful post prandial oratory—arrived here on Tuesday afternoon via the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway.

Dead Fish.

We learn that quantities of dead horse fish were floating down the river yesterday. Persons should now be on their guard.

Special Rates.

We have been requested to announce that the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley R. R. will sell round trip tickets to Greensboro, May 12, 13 and 14, good to return till May 19th, for $5.00 on account of the King's Daughters. Also, that round trip tickets to Wilmington will be sold May 12th and 13th, good to return on or before the 20th, at $4.30, on account of the annual meeting of the I. O. O. F..

It is earnestly to be hoped that the schedule on the line South of here can be so extended and arranged that the hour of departure for Bennettsville will be changed on the 12th from 3:30 to 5:30, in order to give everybody an opportunity of attending the memorial exercises here this year.

All forms of organic and functional diseases cured by Radam's Microbe Killer. For sale by B. E. Sedberry & Son.

SHILOH'S CURE will immediately relieve Croup, Whooping Cough and Bronchitis. For sale at T. W. Broadfoot & Co.'s Drug Store.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

TO TEACHERS.

At a meeting of the Board of Education, held at the office of the undersigned, on MONDAY, MAY 5th, 1890, the following was unanimously adopted: "Ordered that the Superintendent of Public Instruction be instructed to forbid the use of Mrs C. P. Spencer's 'First Steps in North Carolina History' and 'Goodrich's Histories of the United States' in the public schools of Cumberland County."

All the teachers of Cumberland County are hereby notified that the above-mentioned books are FORBIDDEN, and must not be taught in the public schools of this county. H. McD. ROBINSON,

Is Money Scarce?

We are led to doubt the oft-repeated assertion that "money is scarce in this section," when we remember our experience in past spring seasons and realize that we are doing a fine business this spring. Trade is really good with us, and we wish our friends to continue to help us "keep the ball in motion." Our stock was never so attractive before, nor were prices as low on

Fine Clothing

as are our figures for the present season. The every-day expressions of pleased customers attest the fact that such pretty and as we show excels any stock heretofore brought to Fayetteville. Those who have not seen our goods should at once avail themselves of the opportunity, and if you will favor us with an early call we promise that you shall not be disappointed.

STYLISH CLOTHING

MY DAUGHTER.

There came to port, last Monday night,
The quaintest little craft,
Without an inch of rigging on;
I looked, and looked, and laughed.

It seemed so curious that she
Should cross the unknown water
And moor herself right in my room—
My daughter, oh, my daughter!

She has no manifest but this,
No flag floats o'er the water;
She's too new for the British Lloyd's—
My daughter, oh, my daughter!

Ring out, wild bells, and tame ones, too!
Ring out the lovers' moon!
Ring in the little worsted socks!
Ring in the bib and spoon!

Ring out the muse! ring in the nurse!
Ring in the milk and water!
Away with paper, pen and ink!
My daughter, oh, my daughter!

PARTING.

Pass on, and leave me standing here alone!
My soul predicts the future holds for thee
Wealth and the love of men; it has for me
Life's humbler duties. Dear, thy every tone
Hath made my pathway brighter. No weak moan
Shall pass my lips because mine eyes may see
Thine nevermore on earth: although the tree
Hangs leafless o'er my head that once bent down
With its abundant harvest. Many a ray
From out the golden past shines on the rain;
But for the storm and tears of life, the day
Had never its fair rainbow. Blessed pain
That makes us trust our Father, till the way
Lead heav'nward, dear, and we clasp hands again!

More Clover Feeding.

An eminent agriculturist once said that "the cheapest manure for the farmer to buy is clover seed." There is undoubtedly much truth in the remark. The more clover seed there is sown on a farm, the more fertile it will become. Clover gathers from the subsoil and the air large quantities of the most costly fertilizer, nitrogen, which then becomes available for the farmer's use. He can feed the clover to his farm stock, obtain a valuable return, and have the remaining fertilizing elements in his manure heap ready for application to the soil. After two crops of clover have been cut, the roots, which are of themselves equal to quite a good dressing of manure for the soil, can be turned under, enabling the farmer to get a good crop. Frequent re-seeding with clover improves the soil and increases the return obtained by the farmer. Clover has long been regarded as a most valuable crop for renovating the soil either by turning under or using to feed the stock, and returning the manure to the land. It is believed that our grain farmers do not derive so large a share of the benefit from clover-growing as they might if they would make more free and extensive use of this cheapest of fertilizers—clover seed.

Cow Peas and Hog Cholera.

R. H. D. in Country Gentleman.]

On a farm where I have some very poor sandy land, I have fenced off several lots of 30 acres each, and have late in May drilled in one bushel of cow peas to the acre on two of the lots. As soon as the peas begin to ripen I turn in 60 large hogs and from 60 to 80 shoats and brood sows. On the farm I have never lost a hog from cholera. On my home farm I had in an orchard 25 pure Berkshire shoats, 4 brood sows and a boar. These were fed on milk, with a small quantity of corn and as many apples as they could eat. I lost all the shoats, three of the sows and the boar. On a farm two miles from my house I planted an orchard of 20 acres in cow peas; as they became ripe I turned on them 40 hogs and 50 or 60 shoats and sows. Before killing the large hogs I fed for two weeks on corn. Up to February 20 I had no hog with cholera on this farm. At my mill half a mile beyond this farm the hogs were fed on "mill stuff" and corn meal mixed. Here I lost 8 out of 16 fat hogs. Am I to conclude from this experience that the peas used on two farms saved my hogs from cholera?

The Loss of Chicks.

There are but few farmers that know how many chickens they lose in a year. They set every hen that desires to hatch, a large number of chickens come out (but are never counted), and they are carefully attended to; but later in the season, when the farmer begins to inform himself regarding the number on hand, he is surprised to find a large majority missing. Gone—the hawks, rats, crows, snakes and family cat have decimated them down to a very few. Chicks should be raised on business principles. They should be so managed that the farmer knows how many were hatched, and if a single one is missing he should at once investigate the cause and endeavor to avoid further loss from that source. If this was done there would be more profit, and poultry would pay.

The Best Fattening Ration.

In those sections where sweet potatoes are grown easily and cheaply there is no more excellent ration than small potatoes for fattening fowls which are intended for market. Cooked potatoes, thickened with corn-meal, will put more flesh on a hen, and in a shorter time, than any other food known. In fact, any kind of food rich in sugar will fatten stock or poultry quickly, and there is nothing superior to sweet potoes for that purpose. Such food, however, is not suitable for laying hens, as with them fat is detrimental to egg-producing.

London's Supplies.

About 600,000 sheep and lambs, 100,000 oxen, bulls and cows, 13,000,000 quarters of wheat, and more than 20,000,000 of other cereals, 600,000 cwt. of bacon and ham, 300,000 cwt. of salt and fresh beef and pork, 500,000 cwt. of fresh mutton, 330,000 cwt. offresh butter, 250,000,000 lbs. rice, 500,000 cwt. of fish, 220,000,000 lbs. tea, with other commodities in proportionate quantities, are brought into London every year by sea, not to speak of the enormous supplies obtained by railway from British agricultural centres.

Overhead Check Rain.

Boston Transcript.]

The overhead check rein for the horse is refined and steady torture, not for the strain backward of the neck, but because the animal cannot see the ground on which he is stepping. The swaying of his head from side to side is evidence of his trying to find relief.

☞ A much larger proportion of ordinary seed would germinate if more care were exercised in preparing the seed-bed. The finer the soil the better the seed will germinate.
